BORAH ASSAULTS HOUSE REPUBLICANS

Idahoan Accepts Defy of Lower Branch on Disputed Relief Bills

BY FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—With a fervor seldom exhibited in senate debate, leader of the senate coalition today assailed the "no compromise" stand of the house Republicans against the $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, a spokesman of the Republican Independents, drew a roar of applause from the detemined Democratic forces and from the gallery as he shouted an acceptance of the house challenge, and declared for an all-summer fight, if necessary on the relief issue against the administration.

It was a scene unparalleled in recent history of the dignified senate as Borah brought the Democratic leaders across the aisle to shake his hands amid applause from the galleries.

GOP's Biding Time

Silent throughout the assault by the Idahoan and during a more personal attack upon President Hoover and the house Republican leaders by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, the senate Republican leadership bided its time tonight, awaiting a break in the tense deadlock.

It was generally agreed that a compromise was the only way to avoid an extra session after March 4. Borah today assured the Democrats he would help to bring it about. Compromise proposals were being discussed tonight by senate Republican leaders, but they were not made public.

Conference was called for tomorrow afternoon to seek an adjustment of the dispute on the $25,000,000 funds but some negotiations were admitted to be necessary before anything like a solution can be brought out.

Borah pounded his desk as he thundered a denial of the administration's contention that the $25,000,000 fund movement amounts to a "dole." He denied it was without precedent for the American government to aid those suffering from an "act of God."

"We will either feed these people," he shouted, "or we will stay here and tell the American people why we don't feed them. I accept the challenge from the other end of the capitol. I do not propose to surrender upon that principle. I do not propose to accept the implication and the slur.

"These people are upon the ragged edge of starvation. Disease already is beginning to undermine children's health and they are not being taken care of because, I will assume, the Red Cross has not the means to take care of them.

"To take care of people in 21 state, a million and a half, and five or six million unemployed, with from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 is an absurdity."

Senator Caraway discarded the proprieties of congressional debate to call by name the house Republican leaders and accuse them of inconsistency in their stands today as compared with their record of the past. He recalled the request of President Hoover just after the war for $20,000,000 for starving Russian women and children which congress approved. He recalled that then Representative Wood, of Indiana, the present chairman of the appropriations committee, moved to have the fund expended

New Zealand Is Struck by Quake; Great Toll Feared

Wellington, New Zealand, Feb. 3.—(Tuesday) (AP)—A terrific earthquake which rocked Napier, a city of 14,346 population on the west coast of North Island, at 8:51 o'clock this morning caused reports of a great loss of life.

Messages broadcast by his majesty's sloop Veronica said that a great toll was feared and that some deaths were certain, although it gave no figures.

The ship's messages added that nearly every stone building in the town was destroyed and that fires were raging in the center of the city.

A man who witnessed the quake in Napier rushed to Dannevirke, an inland town about 70 miles southwest of the stricken city, and telephoned to Wellington that the loss of life must have been considerable.

LOAN STATUTE REPEAL SOUGHT

Strict Requirements Are Provided in Measure By Rep. Harnly

Lansing, Feb. 2 (AP)—Repeal of the Small loan statute and substitution for it of a far more drastic statute was proposed in a bill submitted in the legislature tonight by Rep. Andrew H. Harnly, of Saginaw. The measure carries the support of the administration.

A flat interest rate of 2½ per cent a month is provided in the proposal. Other charges, now attributed to some companies, such as brokerage, investigational, and collection fees and penalties for late payments would be eliminated by the measure. No interest could be collected in advance.

The entire loan would be void under the proposal if the loaning company charged an excessive rate. The interest is now the only item that is voided. No assignment of wages could be made to cover loans without the signature of a man's wife. No power of attorney could be given the loan company.

High License Fees

Strict requirements are provided for applications for small loan company licenses before the

Mackinac Treasurer Gets Prison Term

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 2 &—William J. Conlogue, 38, former treasurer of Mackinac county, was sentenced to from three to five years in Michigan state prison at Jackson in circuit court here today following his plea of guilty on January 12 to embezzling $12,531.31 from the county treasury.

He had been given until today to make restitution but failed to raise the necessary amount.

Asks Examination On Murder Charge

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—Howard Lewis, 30, of Lansing, demanded an examination when arraigned in justice court today on a murder charge resulting from the fatal stabbing of Leonard Tietsort, 22, last Friday. His examination was set for February 10.

Lewis indicated he would claim he acted in self defense.

SPECIAL TERM LOOMS AHEAD FOR CONGRESS

ADMINISTRATION IS WATCHING RED CROSS DRIVE

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright 1931, by the Escanaba Press)

Washington, Feb. 2—Prospects of an extra session of congress are affected by the latest statement from Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, that unless the relief bills for the aid of the drought area are passed the Democrats will force an extra session. This is only another way of saying that Mr. Robinson means business and that the administration will have to compromise with its foes on capitol hill if it really wants to avoid assembling the new congress after March 4.

The president feels very strongly that the federal government should not appropriate money directly to feed the farmers in the southwest and that the Red Cross will do the job. Many members of congress, however, are doubtful whether, even if the Red Cross drive is successful in raising ten million dollars, the sum will be adequate. The congressional appropriation would expend two and a half times the amount asked for by the Red Cross.

Three Months Rest

Most of the appropriation bills are in a snarl and in conference and it looks highly improbable that an extra session can be avoided anyway; and if Mr. Hoover comes to that conclusion he probably will carry on his fight beyond March 4, calling congress into session in early summer.

If the appropriation bills do not become law it will be necessary to organize the new congress and pass all of them over again through committees and debate in order to reach the same stage that most of these measures have now attained. If Mr. Hoover wished to do so he could let congress adjourn on the fourth of march and announce that he did not intend to call the extra session until the first of June. This would mean a period of rest during March, April and May and would concentrate the activity on appropriation bills in the month of June. Action would have to be taken before July first, which is the beginning of the new fiscal year. Then congress could debate anything else it wished to during July and August, which are

Iron Mountain Will Get New Postoffice

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP) — Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, reported to congress today allocation of $68,764,000 for construction of public buildings, $49,515,000 of which is for cities and towns outside the District of Columbia.

Appropriations for the allotments will have to be carried in the second deficiency bill, still to be drafted, he explained, but no additional authorizations of the construction involved will be required.

Items for postoffices in Michigan included in the allocation were: Iron Mountain, $710,000; Calumet, $120,000; Marshall, $130,000; Alma, $115,000; Boyne City, $65,000; South Haven, $115,000; Lapeer, $100,000.

Groundhog Belief Ridiculous, Says Weather Prophet

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Whether the hibernating groundhog came forth today to carol that treadbare tune, "Me and My Shadow," was of no concern of the U. S. weather bureau.

But the scientific weather prophets pronounced: Believers in this performance" perhaps a bit balmy."

"No worth whatsoever! Absurd! Utterly ridiculous," was the sum total of faith Meteorological Physicist W. J. Humphreys gave to groundhog day predictions.

But he said he regarded as interesting the tenacity with which the human mind clings to such an absurdity.

DEATH PENALTY BATTLE LOOMS

Electric Chair Advocated As Punishment For Murderers

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—Demand for capital punishment for murderers was renewed in the legislature tonight.

Senator Joseph C. Foster, Lansing, introduced a measure to make death in the electric chair mandatory punishment for first degree murderers. Every conviction, whether by circumstantial evidence, plea of guilty or direct evidence would be submitted to the state supreme court. That body would have power to affirm or reverse the conviction or reduce punishment. If the supreme court upheld conviction the murderer would be despatched at once to Jackson prison where electrocution would take place in not less than sixty nor more than ninety days.

Referred to Committee

The bill was referred to the senate judiciary committee by Lieutenant Governor Dickinson. Senator Herbert J. Rushton, Escanaba, heads the committee. Other members are Senators Stevens, Engle, Vaneenenaam, Orr, Conlon, Lennon, Branson and Dacey. Two years ago Branson, Stevens, Vaneenenaam, Conlon and Lennon, consisting a clear majority of the present committee voted for the death penalty. Senators Rushton, Engle and Dacey, who then were house members, voted against it, while Orr is a newcomer.

Makeup of the senate committee indicates that a capital punishment measure of some description is almost certain to be reported to the floor. The usual conflict over whether the measure should be submited to referendum by the people is anticipated.

The Foster bill is almost identical with the Lennon-Wood measure which Green vetoed after it successfully weathered the 1929 legislature. It carries no referendum clause, and provides that even those who plead guilty of first degree murder must be given a court

Orders Received For Army Airplanes

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—Orders have been received at Selfridge field for 75 pursuit ships and six transport planes to take part in the army's maneuvers in the east, starting May 21.

The Selfridge field contingent will leave here May 17 for Dayton, where planes from all posts in the country will assemble, forming a fleet of 672 ships.

Mock attacks will be made during the maneuvers on New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other coast cities from Bangor, Me., to Norfolk, Va.

Eighty-eight officers and pilots and 21 enlisted men will make the flight from Selfridge field.

Arrested On Charge Of Cattle Swindling

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—Herman Lindenschmitt, former sheriff of Washtenaw county, was arrested today in connection with an alleged cattle swindle claimed by officers to have been operated in Washtenaw, Jackson and Lenawee counties. He was taken to Adrian, following his arrest at the request of Sheriff W. J. Hanna of Lenawee county.

Lindenschmitt was implicated, officers said, by Charles Snyder, a soldier, who was arrested in Honolulu. Lindenschmitt is alleged to have made deals for cattle and Snyder to have written fraudulent checks in payment.

Dairy Conditions and Ways For Improvement Discussed

East Lansing, Feb. 2 (AP)—Thousands of Michigan ruralists, arriving here today for the opening sessions of the annual Farmers Week program, turned their attention to dairy farming and its improvement.

The first legislative reformation asked at the opening session was in the form of a resolution by combined dairy groups urging a tax of not less than ten cents a pound on all butter substitutes. Turner H. Broughton, director of the dairy division in the state department of agriculture, urged support for a bill which he said is being prepared by Senator Peter B. Lennon, of Lennon, taxing butter usbstitutes. The proposed measure, he said, would curtail the sale of substitutes and would provide a stimulus for the marketing of dairy products.

Officers Elected

Dr. B. J. Killham, Michigan State college animal pathologist, explained the campaign now under way to rid Michigan of Bang's disease in cattle and undulant fever in humans. He characterized the plague as the greatest obstacle in the path of dairy herd improvement since the eradication of the bovine tuberculosis. Herds free from the disease will be accredited and awarded certificates of merit the same as in the tuberculosis campaign, he said.

A. C. Baltzer, college dairy extension specialist, expressed optimism over the future of the Michigan dairy industry. He said in Michigan dairymen were improving their herds to such an extent that it would be reflected in better marketing conditions.

The following officers were elect-

Big Bill Opens Drive For Reelection With His Menagerie Parade

Chicago, Feb. 2. (AP)—A brass band, a horse-mule-burro parade rediculing his opponents, a burst of fiery oratory, and Mayor William Hale Thompson had opened another campaign today.

The showmanship that carried "Big Bill" Thompson to international renown as an "America First" adherent, a foe of King George and a flood control agitator blossomed out in all its glory as he started his drive for renomination on the Republican ticket and for the honor of being the "world's fair mayor."

Calliopes and a truck bearing a brass band threaded through the loop proclaiming the fact that Chicago's mayor was speaking today, up and down the canyons of stone and steel rode the mayor's well-advertised menagerie, a horse, a mule and a burro.

Astride the horse was a large and handsome cowboy, representing "Big Bill." On the mule was a bespectabled man with a halter around his neck and with a placard dubbing him as Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. The squat burro carried a placard "Little Arty" and a short, fat boy representing Alderman Arthur F. Albert. These two are the mayor's Republican opponents.

The police department loaned its quartet and a mounted squad for the occasion. The mounted police came in handy for the overflow crowd quickly filled the street outside the loop theatre and it was necessary to close the whole block to traffic. Thompson's managers had expected such a crowd and loud speakers carried to the overflow the glowing praise of Thompson's followers and his own biting quips as he flayed his opponents and the Chicago newspapers.

The mayor opened with a reference to the celebrated Springfield faro swindle in which a Chicago politician loaned and lost $50,000 allegedly on the promise that he would receive $10,000 of a faro player's winnings.

"To show my appreciation for this fine turnout," he said, "I want to make an offer. Everybody here with $50,000 cash meet me at the stage door. I'll show you how to make $10,000."

When the laughter had died down he asserted Edward R. Litsinger, the politician in question, was one of Albert's "best mud-throwers" and had intended to start throwing at Mayor Thompson but was too much involved in the faro case.

Flourishes Halter.

Judge Lyle, said the mayor, "puts on a vaudeville show in his courtroom just to get the cheap publicity." He added that 67 out of 99 of Judge Lyle's decisions had been reversed by the appellate court and that the state supreme court had ruled against him in 21 out of 23 cases.

Thompson then flourished a large halter and shouted "if Li'l Arthur is elected, I'll throw his halter around his neck and pull it around his throat—and that goes for the Daily News too. And if the judge is elected I'll do the same for him—and that goes for the Tribune. But if you want a man who wears no halter, elect me."

A recital of the promises he said he had fulfilled, a further pledge to be the friend of the working man and "Big Bill" closed his speech.

Butler Trial To Be Held In Philadelphia

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Philadelphia, which has seen Smedley D. Butler leading its drive on crime and has heard him as virile speaker, will see the dashing marine as defendant in court-martial proceedings and hear him discuss Premier Mussolini for the second time.

Secretary Adams today fixed Monday, February 16, as the date for the court-martial to start there.

Major Butler went to Philadelphia in 1924 as director of public safety and spent two years trying to clean up vice conditions. On January 19, 1931, he made the speech before the Contemporary Club, in which he described Premier Mussolini as a hit-and-run driver.

For that speech he is going to stand military trial.

All indications point to open sessions of the court but a posi-

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A New York newspaper, the Italian Anti-Fascist Il Nuovo Monda, today published a statement, like that of Major General Smedley Butler, that Premier Benito Mussolini had run down and caused the death of a child in Italy.

The publication, only Anti-Fascist organ in the United States, announced, through Girolamo Valenti, its general manager, that it would forward the full story for his use, if he wished, at his forthcoming court martial.

Roosevelt Flying Field Hangars Are Destroyed by Fire

Valley Stream, N. Y., Feb. 2 (AP)—Flames of undetermined origin swept through five wooden hangars on Roosevelt Flying Field No. 2 tonight causing damages amounting to thousands of dollars.

Officials started an investigation when they learned that two strange men were seen leaving the field.

One of the heaviest losses was caused by destruction of the Columbia plane "Uncle Sam," formerly owned by Charles A. Levine, first transatlantic air passenger.

The blaze started in the hangar which housed the airplane, auctioned in part some days ago to Paul Gillespie. The big nickelled Columbia was valued when built, at $250,000.

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, planned tonight to leave his hospital bed tomorrow to answer charges brought against him by fellow clergymen.

Weakened by long months of illness, the temperance leader, nevertheless, planned a vigorous defense. Tomorrow's hearings, to be conducted by twelve ministers appointed by Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Birmingham, Ala., are in the nature of an investigation and not a trial.

Broadway Gangs Fight to Hold Their Sway Over Night Clubs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The sinister relation of New York gangland and racketeering to the city's gay night clubs is described in a series of three special articles by NEA Service, of which this is the second.)

BY PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Writer

New York, Feb. 2—The wreckage has been cleared up in the Club Abbey, the bullet-scarred walls repainted, and soon its electric sign again will twinkle an invitation to the trade. Having proven itself an unhealthy place for a number of gangsters the other morning at dawn, the Abbey will be shunned by "wise-guys" for a time—this to the keen regret of thrill-seekers who come to view the genus mobster in his native heath, the night club.

But at scores and hundreds of other hot-spots along Broadway, in Greenwich Village, and even in Harlem, the big shots and their jewelled women will be more in evidence than ever. For a crisis has appeared in gangland's domination of New York night life, and there are many people to "see," and there is much "fixing" to be done.

Police Commissioner Mulrooney, knowing that the witching hour for the most nefarious deeds and schemes comes early in the morning, is making an effort to close all night clubs at 1 a. m. And clubs like the Abbey, located in hotels and heretofore exempt even from the 3 o'clock curfew law, also will be closed at 1 o'clock if Mulrooney has his way.

$175,000 BOND ISSUE CARRIES

Manistique Taxpayers Approve Fund to Build School

Manistique, Feb. 2 (Special)—Manistique's proposed school expansion program became a reality tonight when taxpayers passed the $175,000 bond issue by a vote of 361 to 264, a plurality of 97. That the election manifested great interest was seen by the fact that 625 or more than 90 per cent of the taxpayers of the city voted on the proposition.

Passage of the bond issue means that Manistique will have modern educational facilities in every respect. It means the erection of a new Westside school, the site of which will be determined in the near future, the construction of a junior high school and an addition to the present high school, a new gymnasium to provide for adequate physical training, and the renovation of the Lakeside school and home economics department. The entire school building program will cost $205,000, $35,000 of which is now in the school fund.

Plans for the school building program will be submitted to the state department and contracts are to be let the early part of next month. Work will commence about April 1. The letting of contracts now instead of a year from now means an approximate savings of $55,000 to local taxpayers. R. V. Gay, of St. Johns, Mich., has been selected as the architect who will have charge of the building program.

Over $80,000 will be spent this spring and summer for labor. This will enable local unemployed to secure work, and thus relieve this locality of the trying conditions which prevail throughout the country. All work will be done by local labor with the exception of some skilled work which will not be possible to secure here.

SEEKS RELIEF FROM BURDEN ON PROPERTY

REDUCED BUDGET IS TO BE SUBMITTED FOR STUDY

BY SAM B. McCOOL
(Ass'd Press Staff Writer)

Lansing, Feb. 2 (AP)—An increase of one cent in the state gasoline tax as a means of effecting desired administration reductions in the state property levy over the next biennium was advocated today by Rep. Gus T. Hartman, of Houghton, chairman of the house ways and means committee and an administration leader in the lower branch of the legislature.

Rep. Hartman announced his advovacy of a 4 cent gasoline tax to relieve property levy appropriations just as the administration was putting the finish touches upon its budget bill in which it proposes to slash between $12,000,000 and $14,000,000 under the document prepared by former Gov. Fred W. Green.

$7,000,000 Increase

Declaring that budget property tax appropriations be cut to about $22,000,000 without the necessity of making radical reductions in existing needy expenditures, the upper peninsula house leader also recommended separate appropriation bills for the Turner school law and the deficiency of the last administration.

Hartman estimated an additional one cent to the gasoline tax would yield a revenue of about $7,000,000 a year. The deficiency from the Green administration has been set in his budget at $4,600,000. The Turner school law now sets aside $2,000,000 from the general fund for the relief of so-called poorer school districts.

"I know of no reason why the Green deficiency item should be included in the Brucker budget. It should be submitted as a separate appropriation bill. The Turner act appropriation should also be offered separately. When it was originally suggested at the last session, it was proposed that the appropriation be met by special taxes and not from the general fund. I advocate letting these two items run through the legislature on their own merits," Hartman said.

Hartman also recommended that the University of Michigan be limited to its mill tax appropriation as is provided in amendments to the Hartman building act submitted by him last week.

"By adding a cent to the gasoline tax, eliminating the deficiency and Turner act appropriations and reducing the Hartman building bill on the average of $3,500,000 a year over the next biennium would bring the budget property tax requirements to about $22,000,000. Of course the deficiency would have to be borne by the property tax payers, tthe same as if it were in the budget but there is no reason for the present administration to feel the responsibility of providing for this item in its own budget," Hartman said.

Not First Proposal

Hartman said an addition to the gasoline tax could be expected to meet opposition from the highway department on the ground that it does not want any more diversion of highway funds. "My proposal, however, would

Three Men Killed In Gambling Den

East St. Louis, Ill., Feb. 2. (AP)—The bodies of three men killed in the gambling establishment of "Wide Open" Smith, in the business district here were found late today, covered by brush, in a ditch beside a road near Granite City, ten miles north.

One of the bodies was identified as that of David Hoffman, 39 year old owner of a jewelry and men's furnishing store here, who was last seen Saturday night. His automobile, with headlights burning, was found yesterday a half block from Smith's establishment.

Another body was identified as that of Joseph P. [illegible], 42, part owner of a St. Louis [illegible] company, who recently, his wife said had been working in an East St. Louis handbook establishment.

The body of the third man was identified as that of Theodore [illegible]minski, 24, of St. Louis, alleged gambler.

tive decision has not been announced officially.

At a conference with newspapermen, Secretary Adams said that "unless we change our minds they might be open."

Charges and specifications for which Butler will be tried have not been completed. They still are being considered by Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, judge advocate general of the navy. When finally drawn up, they will receive the approval of Secretary Adams.

Italy Satisfied

Major Henry Leonard, chief of defense counsel is awaiting service of charges on his client. It was expected Admiral Sellers would submit the charges either tomorrow or Wednesday. They will not be made public without consent of General Butler.

Officials of the Italian government at Washington today said they would not be represented at the trial. They reiterated that the apology of the American government to Italy had closed the incident so far as they were conserned.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., at Phoenix, Ariz., said he might have "a good many things to say" regarding the case at the proper time. There have reports that he supplied General Butler with the Mussolini anecdote.

Meanwhile, General Butler asked for and received permission to leave the confines of the marine post at Quantico, Virginia, to confer with counsel. Permission was granted by Major General Ben H. Fuller, marine commandant.

General Fuller said Butler was given permission to go as far as New York to talk with his legal advisers.

state banking commissioner. The company would virtually have to prove convenience and necessity in its particular area. Its balance sheet would be required to show at least $25,000 in cash or convertible securities.

The license fee for loan companies will be $100 a year in addition to a $50 fee for investigation of the application. Each branch of the parent loan company would be required to obtain a license at the same rate.

Misleading advertisements including radio broadcasts would be punishable under the proposal. Loan companies would be required to file annual reports with the banking commissioner who would be given the power to revoke their licenses with cause. Small loan operatives would not be permitted to establish business in the same place with companies extending larger loans.

Representative Martin R. Bradley, of Menominee county, submitted a bill to remove the black bear from the conservation protective list. The measure would automatically eliminate the payment of damages by the state for depredations of the bear.

hearing and review by the supreme court to determine whether the crime actually constituted a first degree offense.

Simultaneously with the submission of the Foster bill it learned that Senator Lennon, who led the fight for the electric chair two years ago had a measure prepared for introduction. It would limit the supreme court power to review to affirmation or reversal of the first degree murder conviction and would not give the bench power to reduce the degree of the offense. Lennon and Foster plan a conference Tuesday. If an agreement is reached Lennon's ideas may be embodied in the Foster bill. If not Lennon will offer his measure.

Fund-Juggling

An anticipated attack on the broad powers of the state administrative board was launched in the senate tonight when Senator James T. Upjohn, of Kalamazoo, introduced two bills to curb so-called fund juggling.

His bill would repeal portions of the administrative board act giving that body power to arbitrarily fix a state tax or use funds appropriated for one purpose for another. Tax clause appropriations enacted by the legislature could be expended only for the purpose designated by legislature and could not revert to the general fund or be diverted until the legislative mandate had been carried out and the surplus had been revealed.

If adopted the bill would virtually bind the auditor general to refuse to honor vouchers for which no funds were appropriated unless an actual suplus could be shown. It would limit the practice of the administrative board of slashing tax clauses from legislative measures in fixing the state tax and would give legislative appropriations precedence over administrative board decisions.

Manufacturer Freed While Appeal Pends

St. Joseph, Mich., Feb. 2. (AP)—C. E. Nicely, prominent South Bend, Ind., manufacturer, was released from the Berrien county jail today under $20,000 bond pending disposition by the state supreme court of his appeal from a ten to twenty year prison sentence for arson.

Nicely, vice-president, and Walter Hurwich, president, of the St. Joseph Board and Paper Box company, were convicted of arson last November in circuit court here for the burning of the plant in 1928. The appeal is based on a sworn statement by Eugene Furkas, formerly of South Bend, repudiating his previous story that the two company executives had plotted with him to burn the mill for the insurance. Hurwich also is of South Bend.

Senate Turns Down Bill Giving More Powers to Doctors

Washington, Feb. 2. (AP)—The senate today refused to give Washington physicians unlimited authority to issue prescriptions for liquor but the proposal mustered more votes than any move to liberalize enforcement laws has received in the senate since the 18th amendment was adopted.

Twenty-five senators, mostly Republicans, voted to carry out in the District of Columbia the recommendations of the Wickersham prohibition report that restrictions surrounding the issuance of prescriptions by physicians be removed.

The amendment, proposed by Senator Hawes, Democrat, Missouri, to the Howell bill for a District of Columbia enforcement law, was defeated 45-25, but a move to reconsider the vote was beaten only 39-29.

After agreeing to resume consideration of the Howell bill, the senate also struck out, without a record vote, the drastic provisions for home search and seizure, but substituted words which some of the anti-prohibitionists considered almost as far reaching.

Swedish Prince Will Marry for Love, Not Crown

Stockholm, Feb. 2 (AP)—Young Prince Lennart of Sweden chose today between love in the comparatively humble home of a gentleman farmer and a life of pomp in a royal palace.

His choice was for love.

He formally announced his engagement to Miss Karin Nissvandt, a commoner and daughter of a Swedish businessman, despite the disapproval of his grandfather, King Gustave.

To marry a commoner meant that he would lose his title as prince and must renounce succession to the throne, for Swedish law prohibits a marriage between prince and commoner without the knowledge and consent of the king.

King Gustave announced today, in a message from the palace, that "after serious consideration, and with deep regret," he was unable to sanction Lennart's choice of the girl who has been his sweetheart since childhood days.

Food Poisoning Is Blamed for Deaths Of Dozen Persons

Grafton, N. D., Feb. 2 (AP)—A dozen persons were dead tonight, victims of botulism, a virulent form of food poisoning, which struck them down one by by one over a period of four days.

Two of the victims died today after 10 others had succumbed at intervals since last Thursday when 17 persons partook of a salad during a party at the home of Edward Hein, near here. One of the diners, who ate sparingly of the dish, suffered no ill effects, another was made only slightly ill, and three others recovered after attacks of vomiting.

Home preserved peas, included in the salad, were blamed by health officials for the fatalities which included five members of the Hein family, the parents and three children. Three other children of the Hein family did not partake of the lunch.

Capital Gains Tax RepealRecommended

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—As a means of curbing stock market inflation, Charles E. Mitchell, New York financier, today recommended repeal of the capital gains tax.

In addition, the chairman of the National City bank urged before the senate banking investigating committee that brokers loans made on account of individuals and corporations be considered as part of available credit.

Mitchell, a director of the federal reserve bank of New York, said the tax on profits made from sales of securties was "one of the faults" of the taxing system and was "disastrous both in a rising and a falling market."

He expressed the opinion that over a period of years the government would get just as much if not more revenue by eliminating the tax.

Compromise Might Be Discussed On Veterans Relief

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP)—Out of the host of conflicting plans for cashing veterans bonus certificates, there grew today talk of a compromise and a new warning of disastous effects that might be expected from a $3,500,000,000 bond issue to pay cash in full.

Representative Patman of Texas, a Democratic advocate of cash redemption, said Senator Vandenberg Republican, Michigan, had expressed belief after a visit to the White House that a 50 per cent increase in the loan value and a reduction in interest would be approved by the administration.

Meantime Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank of New York, predicted "hundreds" of small bank failures would follow a bond issue to pay in full the face value of the certificates. He made the statement before the senate banking sub-committee.

Find Broker Guilty Of Misuse of Mail

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A jury in the court of Federal Judge John C. Knox required only twenty minutes late today to convict James A. Connolly, erstwhile St. Paul broker, on three counts for misuse of the United States mail in the sale of bonds stolen from middle western banks.

Judge Knox sentenced to a total of 15 consecutive years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and fined him $25,000. The last five years of the sentence was ordered suspended on the condition that Connolly never again sell securities.

Stevenson and Joseph Chapman, also a negro, had forced their way into the car of Louis Cohen and Miss Margaret Kimball in South Bend, Ind., on the night of December 23 and ordered Cohen to drive them to Kalamazoo. At Watervliet, Mich., where a stop was made for gasoline, Cohen shouted for help. Stevenson and Chapman fled, pursued by a group of boys. BISHOPS HEAR CANNON TODAY found to have weight in the minds of the twelve, Bishop Cannon will be suspended from active duties and brought to trial by the general conference of the church which meets in 1934.

Based On Speculations

The nature of the charges, filed by Dr. F. J. Prettyman, of Baltimore, Dr. I. P. Martin of Abingdon, Va., and Drs. Costen J. Harrell, and J. T. Mastin, of Richmond, has never been disclosed, but they are supposed to be based in part on Bishop Cannon's dealings with a brokerage house in New York, found by the New York courts to have been a bucketshop.

Bishop Edwin Mouzon, of Charlotte, N. C., and E. V. W. Darlington, of Huntington, W. Va., have been asked by Bishop Ainsworth to observe the hearings for the college of bishops. They are expected to arrive here early tomorrow.

Complete secrecy surrounded plans for the investigation. The names of the ministers who will hear the charges have not been announced and plans were made at Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, where the hearings will take place, to see that neither the press nor the public gets near the rooms selected for the investigation.

Gandhi Committee Rejects Proposals Of London Parley

Allahabad, India, Feb. 2 (AP)—After sounding a call to his followers to continue their civil disobedience campaign against Great Britain, Mahatma Gandhi, frail 96-pound nationalist leader, suddenly went into trance-like silence today which will last 24 hours.

Not even his favorite spinning wheel, at which he spend so many hours, could draw him from his 24-hour "sacrament." His friends say it gives him a chance to meditate, pray, examine his conscience and commune with God.

The self-imposed isolation of the Mahatma followed five days of conferences with other leaders of the working committee of the Indian national conference. The meetings resulted in the momentous decision of the committee, largely dictated by Gandhi, to reject the proposals of Prime Minister MacDonald for qualified Indian self-government as wholly inadequate.

by the Red Cross.

"Representative Tilson, the Republican leader, who now says this appropriation would stab the Red Cross in the heart, voted in 1919 then to stab the Red Cross in the heart," asserted Caraway. "So did Snell (the chairman of the house rules committee.) When did Tilson lay aside his dagger? Let him tell the starving American women and children whether he was telling the truth then or now. One of these statements didn't reflect the truth and he knew it."

Caraway turned back upon President Hoover the accusation Mr. Hoover made recently against some members of congress of "playing politics with human misery." He said the only difference between the $20,000,000 fund for Russia advocated by the president and the $25,000,000 fund now proposed was "they were Russians and these are good Americans."

Caraway said it did not seem that Mr. Hoover was a "good American citizen" but he withdrew that statement a moment later. He did insist, however, after calling attention to Mr. Hoover's message to congress asserting "that no deserving person must suffer from cold and hunger."

Caraway demanded that Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross tell "the origin of this determination to decline a federal contribution" adding that Payne had taken no such stand when he appeared before the senate appropriations committee.

The Arkansas senator read an advertisement asking for contributions to the Red Cross which said that hundreds of Americans were "hungry ragged and cold."

"If that is so," he said, "the Red Cross is not meeting the situation." Conceding that he was "making no effort to be polite" Caraway pursued his personal attack on the house republicans. He said that Tilson "didn't let any one in this body have any peace until he had got a life job for his brother on the federal pay roll."

"I just want to show the character of the men who are turning thumbs down on a million American people," said Caraway.

Attacks Cramton

"There is Mr. Treadway, of Massachusetts," he continued, "whom fire swept the town of Salem, Mass., we were asked for $200,000 and we gave it. He votes no now for a million people but held out his hat then. What difference is there between feeding Massachusetts people and the people in th southwest?"

Without mentioning him by name Senator Caraway then referred to Representative Cramton, Republican, of Michigan, who led the fight against the $25,000,000 appropriation.

"Then there is the man who led the fight against this appropriation," he said, "a man who is going out of office on March 4. Still he has tucked away his $10,000 plum. He is to get $10,000 annually from a patriotic fund and still he turns thumbs down on a million American people."

Cramton has been proposed for a position with the George Washington bi-centennial commission.

not be disturbed."

The recommendation of the house leader is not the first to be made for an increased gasoline tax. Other advocates, however, have recommended the increased tax to provide funds for township, cities and village highway relief.

Hartman said today he will study the administration budget bill at least a day before he submits it in the house. "I want to satisfy myself that it is the proper preliminary measure that should be submitted," he said.

Extended hearings with state department heads before his committee that their "budgets may be cut to the minimum" were foreseen by Hartman.

PLANS NEW BUDGET

Lansing, Feb. 2 (AP)—The administration budget program probably will be completed and laid before the legislature this week, with indications that the tentative $96,000,000 schedule of expenditures for the coming biennium will be cut sharply. Governor Wilber M. Brucker has ordered complete revision of the original budget. He said he believes $15,000,000 and possibly more, can be eliminated.

The administration institutional bill already has been introduced in the house. It cuts nearly $7,500,000 from the amount contemplated by the 1929 Hartman act for the fiscal years ending in 1932 and 1933. Added to this reduction there will be recommended cuts in buildings outside the Hartman measure, maintenance and operation.

Mormon Occupation Of Beaver Island

The Story of King Strang

(Editor's Note: This is the second installment of the story of King Strang and the Mormon colony on Beaver Island.)

BY ROBERT H. WRIGHT

It will be of interest to note that the inspiration for the tenets of early Mormonism were derived from a novel written by Solomon Spaulding, an eccentric preacher, and that it was through the unethical act of an irresponsible printer that the "Book of Mormon," became the spiritual law of the Mormon church, founded by its first "prophet of the Lord," Joseph Smith, himself a strange character, in 1830, at Manchester, New York.

Spaulding, it appears, had taken his manuscript for what he called "an historical romance," to the printing office where Sidney Rigdon was employed. Rigdon copied the manuscript and gave it to Joseph Smith, whose cunning mind perceived the possibilities contained in Spaulding's fanciful ideas. Spaulding's romance dealth with the disperson of the people at the time of the building of the Tower of Basel. He asserted that certain of the refugees came to America, that they engaged in internal warfare, destroying each other, and that in the year 600 B. C., a certain Lehi, his wife and four sons and ten friends quit Jerusalem and came to America also, that Lehi died and was succeeded by his younger son Nephi. This displeased his elder brothers and it is presumed that they kicked up some sort of a row over the matter and, as a punishment they and their descendants were condemned to have dark skins, and thus they become the progenitors of the Indians. Later on the Indians and the Nephites met in battle on the hill of Cumorah in the state of New York and the Nephites took the count. Mormon and his son Moroni escaped with their scalps intact. Old Mormon had collected the sixteen books of the records kept by former kings and priests into one volume and when he gave up the ghost his son Moroni added some of his own personal recollections and reminiscenses. Now this was a curious book for its pages were thin plates of gold, 8x7 inches and the golden leaves were bound together with three golden rings. The volume was six inches in thickness, and the records contained upon its pages were inscribed in "reformed Egyptian." The volume was six inches in thickness and Moroni, following divine instruction, placed it in a stone contained and buried it in a hole in the ground in the hill of Cumorah, there to be discovered at the proper time by some duly appointed "prophet of the Lord." The snows of many winters whitened the beard of Moroni and he died and we are assured that he became an angel by Joseph Smith who had some little talk with him about the golden book, and who asserted that "the angel Moroni" appeared to him in a vision.

Began to Have Visions

For some time previous to the year 1830 the people 'round about Manchester noticed that young Smith was acting queerly. He wasn't sick, but it was soon discovered that he was having visions and it was in one of these transports of celestial joy that "the angel Moroni" introduced himself to Joseph, appearing three times and told him where he had buried the golden book in the hill of Cumorah. Then "the angel Moroni" faded out. Smith waited four years, on probation, then went to the spot indicated and found it sacred, golden treasure, and also a pair of spectacles, clear crystals set in a bow, all of which was presented to him by another angel. Although Smith was not much more of a "literary man" than Silas Wegg, who was "a literary man with a wooden leg," he adjusted the spectacles and found to his great surprise that he was enabled to read the "reformed Egyptian" characters with perfect ease. Being a poor writer he employed a male secretary, one Oliver Cowdry, (although he possessed himself of an office wife later on) and he dictated to Cowdry from the plates of gold, reading through his magic spectacles, Urim and Thummin, as they were called. While he dictated he sat concealed from Cowdry by a curtain. In this manner he compiled the Book of Mormon, the supplementary bible of the Mormon church, now a great and respectable institution. Here it may be remarked that such names as Lehi, Nephi, Mormon and Moroni are not scriptural names, but imaginative names of the ficticious characters who found birth in the mind of Spaulding.

Now that he was full armed Smith openly declared himself, the chosen prophet of the Lord and he attracted a few followers and established the Mormon church. But Smith was not "a prophet in his own country," for he was too well known. He soon moved with his followers to Kirtland, Ohio, where he had another revelation and was told to start a bank. He did. Soon the country was flooded with worthless notes and the Gentiles of that region waxed hot. One night they got Rigdon, the printer, and Smith, the prophet, out of their beds and tarred and feathered them. About this time Brigham Young, of commanding force and great intellect, came along and put the church on its feet. Next we hear of the Mormons leaving Kirtland and going to Missouri, where the "show me" people refused to believe in invisible visions and revelations and the Mormons were chased out of the state. Their next stand was at Nauvoo, Ill., where their membership grew to great proportions. Smith was elected mayor of the city and a special charter gave the Mormons extraordinary freedom of action. Smith organiged a small army and became lieutenant general. His ambitious scheme was to become ruler of a state, then of the United States and finally of the world. The Mormons here again aroused the bitter antagonism of the people of the state, the city of Nauvoo was cannonaded and Smith and his brother Hyrum were pailed in the city of Carthage where a mod entered the prison and killed both Smith and his brother on the night of June 27, 1844. Thus ended Mormonism in that section of the country.

James Jesse Strang, then living at Burlington, Wis., had been at Nauvoo, had become converted to Mormonism, and he now became the rival of Brigham Young, Rigdon and others for the leadership of the Mormons. Brigham Young won and with a large following departed for Utah. The history of the founding of the church at Salt Lake City, crimes such as the murder of Captain Gunnison, a U. S. army surveyor, the Mountain Meadow massacre, the government's fight to suppress polygamy and the final regeneration of the church under able leadership furnishes a chapter of western history with which we need not deal in this sketch.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MICHIGAN

America's own "duse of drama," at least insofar as the "talkies" are concerned, endows the screen at the Michigan Theatre this week, with a new emotional triumph that will elicit all the nice things any photoplay audience can say, if there is more to be said after those outstanding productions, "Madame X," "Sarah and Son," "Anybody's Woman."

The duse, of course, is Ruth Chatterton; the drama, "The Right to Love," which Richard Wallace has camerized in dialogue for Paramount from the Susan Glaspell book, "Brook Evans." And the whole is an event—which should not be missed by any in Escanaba who take their entertainment seriously.

Miss Chatterton enacts two distinct roles in "The Right to Love," and in one of them veers from girlhood to mother type, without a single error in mood, coiffure, speech, costumes and poise. This is, at least, a triple achievement.

The story, set in the farm lands of the Middle West, tells of a girl whose secret love trysts engender a tragic sacrifice of happiness in later years, a state of affairs she determines will not be the heritage of her daughter. The manner in which love finds a way, through two generations of straight-jacketed repression, is convincingly narrated, and leads to a most surprising climax.

Paul Lukas, David Manners, George Baxter, Irving Pichel, Veda Buckland and Oscar Apfel, players of experience and understanding, handle their assignments in fine harmony with the Chatterton roles. Zoe Akins adapted the screen play.

AT THE DELFT

"Passion Flower," William de terday opened shrd cmf vbg vbv Mille's M-G-M picture which opened yesterday at the Delft Theatre, is a well-done presentation of the popular and much-discussed novel by Kathleen Norris. The well-known roles of Cassy, Dan, Dulce, Morado and Leroy Pringle are played by such excellent screen artists as Kay Johnson, Charles Bickford, Kay Francis, Lewis Stone and Winter Hall.

The story is a finely etched but very simple one of married life. The situation is one that is constantly occurring and recurring. The end is one too few people have the courage to take. Martin Flavin, the playwright, has done a splendid job of adaptation. Due credit also goes to little Dickie Moore for a splendid child's part.

SLANDER SUIT IS DISMISSED

Henning Danielson Drops Case Against Conference Officials

In the circuit court at Crystal Falls yesterday, a suit for slander instituted by Henning Danielson, formerly pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church at Rapid River, against Rev. C. A. Lund, of Escanaba, Rev. C. A. Rosander, of Crystal Falls, and George Bergman, of Escanaba, synod officials, was dismissed upon motion of the attorney for the plaintiff.

The suit was the outgrowth of allegedly sensational charges, filed with conference officials against the then Rev. Danielson and which resulted in the resignation of Mr. Danielson and the acceptance of the resignation by authorized officials of the church. The suit filed by Mr. Danielson charged slander against the conference officials and demanded damages for the plaintiff and all preparations had been made to proceed with the trial of the case at Crystal Falls yesterday morning.

A large number of witnesses had been summoned by Senator H. J. Rushton, attorney for the defense, and testimony was to be introduced in an effort to prove the truth of the charges made against the former Rapid River pastor, when at the calling of the case before Judge Frank Bell, yesterday, Derham & Derham, of Iron Mountain, attorneys or the plaintiff, made a motion for the dismissal of the suit brought by their client.

The dismissal of the case is regarded as complete vindication of Rev. Lund, Rev. Rosander and Mr. Bergman, made defendants in this action.

Sedan Hits Sled

Marquette—Disregard of police regulations relative to coasting nearly resulted in serious injury or death yesterday afternoon of two young boys whose sled was struck by an automobile.

The boys, Billy Normand and Kenneth LaBelle, both about 10 years old, were sliding on North Sixth street hill, between Ridge and Washington, one of the hills on which coasting is not permitted. They coasted over the crosswalk and out into the middle of Washington street, when they were struck by a sedan driven by John Kozik, of Big Bay. Kozik was driving west on Washington street and, according to eyewitnesses, was not traveling more than 10 miles an hour.

The boys' sled was moving rapidly. They darted out in the street and were directly in front of Kozik's car before he saw them. He jammed on his brakes and his car stopped within 15 feet, despite the fact that the roadway was icy, but he could not avoid striking the sled.

LET'S HELP AGAIN

DELTA COUNTY has been assigned a quota of $400 as its share of the $10,000,000 fund being raised for the relief of the drought sufferers in this country.

This county went over the top in its annual drive recently, and surely this special appeal will meet with success too. The money obtained in the other campaign is being used for the increased amount of local relief work that has become necessary because of unemployment conditions. Therefore, to meet this new emergency a second solicitation of funds has been started.

The Red Cross is one organization without an ulterior purpose. Its sole reason for existence is to render service where flood or fire, earthquake or other destructive force of nature, or the carelessness or misfortunes of men, have brought suffering or misery to human-kind.

It saves lives. It comforts the living. It treats the sick. It clothes the poor and wretched. It feeds the starving. It gives hope, spirit, tender care, love. It is the personification of Christianity.

Give what you can to the Red Cross; the sooner the better. You can depend upon the Red Cross to use the money where it will accomplish the most good. It is an efficiently handled relief organization. It has talent, energy, foresight and excellent management. Contributions given it produce the full hundred cents in service for every dollar, and it must have contributions to operate.

GREENER PASTURES

EVERY GROWN person has a dream stuck away some place in a dusty corner of his heart . . . a dream of the thing that he wanted to do when he grew up. And frequently still wants to do, although he knows that he might as well wish for Aladdin's lamp or the flying carpet.

His Highness the Prince of Wales isn't any different than other men. He knows exactly what he would do if he didn't have to spend his time performing equestrian stunts while he waits around for the day that he will sit on a throne. He would be a newspaper correspondent.

Plenty of newspapermen, and plenty of men who aren't newspapermen, have wanted to be kings. Every youngster has pretended, some time or other, that the garden swing was a throne and the boy who lived next door and the little girl across the street were his faithful subjects. But if monarchs have felt the urge to go after a story they have kept still about it.

The Prince of Wales has had plenty of opportunity to grow acquainted with the newspaper world. Correspondents have questioned him on everything from his favorite kind of breakfast food to his preference in women. He has heard them tell of their assignments. And he has decided that he would like to go after a big story somewhere . . . a story that had pathos and humor, drama and conflict, which he could toss against the front page for all the world to read.

Almost any editor would give the prince a job. He would be interested in seeing what sort of a nose for news a prince could have. And it is certainly true that almost anyone would be willing to grant the heir to the British throne an interview.

But since he has royal blood in his veins the future king can't follow the drama of today and record the adventures of others. He has to continue to play the lead in the stories instead. Not even princes can have the things they want always. They have to wear crowns when they prefer printers' ink. They have to let reporters question them when they have all sorts of leads for better stories.

Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, and several other titles, can't get a daily by-line for news stories. His name would be too long for that purpose, anyway. But he would like to, and that fact makes him distinctly human.

Th[illegible]hool teachers who wanted to wear spangled dresses and ride bareback in a painted show; the judges who dreamed of lassoing broncbos in a west far wilder than any cinema has found; the bookkeepers who would like to be aviators; the newspapermen who once in a while have thought it would be rather amusing to change places with the parties they have interviewed. . . . They will understand the prince.

And the latter group will agree that if the prince got started he probably would be even less interested in Great Britain's throne than he is now.

BOHN FAVORS REPEAL

FRANK P. BOHN, congressman from this district has openly declared himself as favoring a referendum either for repeal or revision of the Eighteenth Amendment. The congressman's break with the dry forces in congress came last week when he voted against an appropriation for wire tapping and under cover methods of securing evidence against prohibition offenders.

Heretofore, Dr. Bohn has been numbered among the drys in the Michigan delegation in congress and has voted consistently for prohibition legislation, including the Jones law, doing this on the theory that as long as the Eighteenth Amendment was a part of the constitutional law of the country it should be enforced and funds provided for that purpose.

That his position has not changed materially in spite of his vote against the appropriation for wire tapping, is shown by the following teegram received by the News in reply to one sent him asking for a confirmation of the press reports:

"The break came last Thursday when I voted against the appropriation for wire tapping and under cover methods of securing evidence against prohibition offenders. Am fairly well quoted in the Grand Rapids Press. I favor a referendum either for repeal or revision of the Eighteenth amendment. Expect to vote for appropriations for proper enforcement of law until modified or repealed."

To those intimately acquainted with Dr. Bohn, it has long been an open secret that he has bitterly resented the tactics of the Anti-Saloon league and the rabid drys in attempting to dictate legislation and browbeat the legislators into doing their bidding through fear of political repraisals. That he has elected to stand on his own feet, do his own thinking, and vote according to the dictates of his conscience, will cause no surprise.

In company with many other constructive thinkers, he has very evidently come to the conclusion that prohibition after being given a fair trial, has proven a failure, a tragic farce, and the sooner the amendment is either repealed or amended the better.

For his courage and manhood in coming out boldly with a declaration of his convictions he is to be commended, and the home folk will applaud his action.—Newberry News.

LANIER'S BIRTH

On Feb. 3, 1842, Sydney Lanier, an American musician and poet, was born at Macon, Ga.

After graduating from Ogithorpe College, he served as tutor there for a year before he entered the Confederate army at the outbreak of the Civil War. The war over, he returned to his home to study and then practice law with his father.

At this period his two dominant passions, poetry and music, over-mastered him, and he decided to give up law. He went to Baltimore and obtained a position as first flute in the Peabody Symphony orchestra. His literary ability was noticed when he gave lectures on English literature.

He formed a helpful literary friendship with Bayard Taylor. In 1879 Lanier was appointed lecturer on English literature at Johns Hopkins University. He died two years later from consumption.

Lanier stands in the front rank of the American poets of the last quarter of the 19th century.

THE TAKERS

Oh, chide us not for giving less
Than we could give, who could give more.
The giving know the weariness
Of giving, giving o'er and o'er
And knowing that they give in vain,
All things accepted by the rest
As though their duty were so plain
They need be neither thanked nor blessed.

Not greater givers life demands
But better takers. Day by day
They snatch the gifts from out love's hands,
Some sacrifice, and nothing say,
As though the givers did but do
Their duty—aye, as if they thought
That God intended that the few
Should serve the many, and for naught.

The busy mother, weary sire,
The tender husband, faithful wife,
The friend, the neighbor—all can tire
Without some recompense from life.
The giving grow so weary of
The call to give what others clutch;
Alas, for someone who would love
The giver, not the gift so much.

FOR GINGER'S SAKE

(By NEA Service) BY ETHEL HUESTON

CHAPTER XVII

Dancing had been announced for nine o'clock—that in itself a daring innovation in a community where six is the favorite hour for dining, and where within an hour or so afterward the average resident is willing to call it a day and retire for the night.

So it was not surprising that impelled doubly by their own determination to miss nothing, and by the insistence of parents who considered 7:30 the proper hour for a children's party, the upper high and prep school crowd was in noisy possession of the tables assigned to them.

And those same parents, be it confessed to their shame, had resorted to the unworthy expedient of driving the youngsters out, as a sole legitimate excuse to obtain one glimpse of the goings-on at Joie de Vivre that night.

By eight o'clock every reservation had been taken up, and Benito, shrewdly figuring that there was no use waiting an hour when folks were willing to begin parting with their money at once, started the ball rolling.

He turned Angelo loose at the piano, released the three waiters borrowed from the Hotel Grand for the evening—for a consideration—and made his first attack upon the auditory nerves of Iowa.

Even if there had been no food at all, no dancing and no clubhouse, the three suave and smiling foreigners in their startling compilations of second-hand operatic costumes garnered heaven knew whence, would have stamped the evening with the ineffaceable hall-mark of success. Even Ginger felt a stirring of her already excited pulses at sight of them.

It was at Bard's suggestion that they adhered exclusively to their native tongue, answering every word addressed to them with a torrent of elouent, incomprehensible Italian which permitted of no argument in return, and at the same time lent an international flavor that Red Thrush had not before experienced.

Also, as Bard aptly observed, it served to condone the service, which was not always what it might have been. One who ordered soup received spaghetti, one who would have crackers and cheese was obliged to be content with ginger ale and fruit cookies. No matter! All protests were swept away in the laughing tide of apologetic, rhythmic, good-natured Italian.

Out by the gate Ben Brooks held royal court with his friends, although crowded just a trifle for first honors by Iry Ford, upon whom, after all, the merry-makers were largely dependent for transportation to and from this place of joy, while upon Ben devolved merely the dubious delight of bouncing the undesirables.

"Ain't that Mussolini got lungs now," said Ben admiringly.

"If all Eye-talians got lungs like that," said Iry Ford, "they ain't got no call to waste money on battleships. They can go to war and sing their enemies to death."

The youth of that particular corner of southeastern Iowa was letting itself go in good earnest that sweet May night. The mere fact that the twin inhibitions of parentage and pastorate had been torn asunder was sufficient to loose the floodgates of their surging exuberance.

On the whole, no one in the world had a higher regard for the ministry than Ginger Ella, she having by her own admission practiced it since the day of her birth, her father more often than not being referred to as "Ginger's help." But as a social asset she was beginning to find it something of a liability. As she explained to Bard apologetically, not wishing him to feel that she cherished any real disloyalty to the profession in which she was born, bred and had her being, "to have some one interrupt right at the climax of one of my most unprintably Freudian repartees to ask father to speak a few words on this or that, or return thanks, or lead in prayer, takes all the savor out of my salt."

But on the night of the formal opening dance, the Joie de Vivre

Health Tips

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

The human body is a complicated mechanism through which the blood circulates.

The nervous system is co-ordinated through the spinal cord and the brain. Hence a pain in one part of the body may be the manifestation of something seriously wrong in some other part, exactly as a bell ringing on the second floor of a house may indicate that a burglar is trying to enter a basement window.

In a recent survey of the general subject of rheumatism, Dr. J. J. J. Giraldi, associated with a center for research in diseases of the heart in Bristol, England, describes a large number of cases of acute rheumatic conditions in which the first symptoms of importance were related to the abdomen rather than to the points or to the heart, as is quite commonly expected.

Thus in four cases concerning boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 18, the first symptoms of rheumatic fever were severe abdominal pain, vomiting and diarrhea, followed within a few months by the development of murmur in the heart and later by pains in the limbs and all of the symptoms of acute rheumatism.

A study of medical literature reveals that these symptoms have been described by medical investigators as far back as 1635 and that series of studies of these symptoms were made in 1894 by several physicians.

Sometimes the pains are related particularly to the appendix, and it seems possible that the rheumatic infection may on occasion manifest itself first in a severe form of appendicitis. On the other hand, it is quite possible that a severe rheumatic infection of the hip joint may cause pains which are much like those occurring in appendicitis.

Sir James MacKenzie, noted British investigator of diseases of the heart, emphasized repeatedly the importance of detecting the earliest possible symptoms of disease in order to accomplish what may be accomplished for its prevention and for its control.

It would seem to be especially important that children who complain of severe abdominal pain, with but slight fever and with but little other noticeable cause for the pain, be watched more carefully thereafter for the earliest signs of rheumatic conditions, particularly those affecting the heart.

New African Auto Road Rough

If you wish an auto trip from Mount Selinda to Beira, Southern Rhodesia, the road is now open, according to reports just issued. The road is rather rough, and all the small rivers have been bridged by using poles tied together, but one may reach Beira, and if lucky may catch a steamer, running three times a week, for the vast Portuguese district of Mossurize.

ANDREWS MILL RUNNING AGAIN

The Diamond Pole and Piling company's sawmill commenced operations yesterday morning, giving employment to more than fifty men.

James R. Andrews, general manager of the company, said that indications are that the plant would operate until early summer at least.

ENGADINE

Engadine, Feb. 2. (Special)—Mrs. Gordon Edwards entertained the M. E. Ladies' Aid at her home on Melville street, Thursday afternoon. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Burnett, February 12.

The construction of a new hotel has been started by the Freeman Lumber Company, which is located on the South side of Melville street, next to the Cloverland Cafe, which is also owned by the same company. A large force of men are now employed and work is being pushed as rapidly as possible toward completion. Officials of the company had decided to build the hotel next spring, but considering the present unemployment depression, decided to build at once, thereby furnishing a number of men with work who otherwise would be unemployed.

Jay Church, proprietor of the Whip-O-Will summer resort, east of here, and who has been spending the winter in Lansing, arrived here last Tuesday and will put up his ice supply while here. Mr. Church expects to leave for Lansing about Friday.

World Audience Listens In With 24 Million Sets

Washington (AP)—More than 24 million receiving sets, representing a value of one and a half billion dollars, are believed in use in the world today.

That is the estimate of Lawrence D. Batson, department of commerce statistician, in an analysis of world markets for radio.

Batson estimates the total investment in broadcasting stations throughout the world to be approximately $29,000,000, one-half of which is represented by stations in the United States.

Selectivity, he says, is a primary requisite in receiving sets designed for use in Europe. That is attributed to the comparatively small amount of chain broadcasting. With large stations on clear channels, the fan is able to choose his entertainment from a wide field of programs.

In this coutnry, on the other hand, identical pragrams are broadcast by large stations on chains in various sections.

Socket power sets account for 52 per cent of the total number in use in North America, for about one-half of the sets in Europe, and one-quarter of those in South America. Crystal sets are fewest in North and South America, representing one and two per cent respectively. They are highest in Russia and Turkey where the ratio is around 20 per cent.

In some places where tips are abundant, the employe pays the employer for the right to work for him, declared a witness during a recent hearing before the Ministry of Labor Commission in London.

GANGS FIGHT TO CONTROL NIGHT CLUBS

Such an ordinance would spell ruin to the sucker trade, for the joy-joints are brightest just before dawn. It is said that all the influence and much of the money gangland's command is being martialled for defense of the lucrative amusement racket.

The shooting of Dutch Schultz, former Bronx beer baron, and Charles Sherman, who was by way of becoming a powerful figure among Manhattan night clubs, threatened the outbreak of an underworld war which might and still may, attain the proportions of the Capone-Moran feud in Chicago. But even this has been postponed in a common observance of the established code: "First get rid of the law, and then we'll settle this between ourselves."

But not alone to assure the flood of dollars from early morning diversion seekers are the night clubmen fighting the early closing law. Those who are numbered among the ranks of the mobsters and racketeers are seeking to preserve the pleasure palaces as headquarters for themselves and their henchmen. The "wise-guy corners" and the backrooms of these places have genuine utility. From them, according to police, are controlled the 22 major rackets that take more than $100,000,000 from New Yorkers and their legitimate businesses each year. There are planned many of the highjackings, the big robberies, the gigantic liquor deals, and the gang reprisals. There, over immaculate linen, cigars and cocktails, the entrepreneurs of the underworld hold round-tables of ideas.

Few Shootings in Clubs

They can go and come pretty much as they please, less noticed by police than they would be in hotel-room conferences. And even a professional murderer doesn't look dangerous in a boiled shirt.

Nor are they, usually. It is comparatively seldom that the jazz melodies of night club orchestras are punctuated by the bark of guns. One that will be long remembered was the massacre in Jack (Legs) Diamond's Totsy-Totsy Club. Bill Cassidy and Simon Walker, two beer runners, were slain. Legs, who then was making a name for himself as a diplomatic racketeer, fled the city. An associate was tried for the murders and acquitted. When Legs returned, most of the witnesses meanwhile having met untimely ends, he was released for lack of evidence.

When gang guns spoke in the Black Bottom Club, mobsters Greco and Viscardi were killed. Dusty Wallace got his at the Club LaVie. Harry Block, who climbed the prohibition ladder from a small-time thief to wealthy night club owner, escaped more than one attack in his still-famous Silver Slipper, only to be drilled twelve times last April as he stepped into the elevator of his luxurious apartment.

Bombs, burnings and various forms of sabotage are common enough, though. Every club with an enviable income suffers either by such destruction or through the amounts of its payments for protection. It was only a month ago, for instance, during the Plantation and Cotton Club feud, that nine men with guns, axes and crowbars went to the Plantation and very deliberately smashed everything in the place.

Bitter Enmities Existed

Rumors of an impending gang war have been gaining credence throughout the five boroughs of the city, and the Abbey shooting is not expected to hasten an armistice. It was Schultz who forced Legs Diamond out of the northern territory when he tried to operate a night club there, and now the Bronx racketeer is reported to be "moving in" on Diamond's old territory.

Schultz also was suspected of knowing a great deal about the shooting of Diamond last October. Soon afterward, when Harry Western, friend of Schultz and another who had opposed Diamond in the northern territory, disappeared, the Main Stem nodded knowningly. The only trace of Schultz ever found was his blood-stained car.

Jack Diamond was the sixty-ninth victim of the year in gangland's guerilla warfare. But there were 89 shootings within a month after he fell, and by now the figure is nearing 200. Diamond, a physical wreck after his fight against death, has retired to his country stronghold. Ownie Madden, Manhattan racket king, also has abdicated for his health. His field marshal, George Germaine, is attending to "interests" in Florida. Schultz spirited away after the Club Abbey affray, is either dead or in hiding. "Little Augie" Pisano's crowd in Brooklyn is quiescent, ominously so.

Promise Police Shake-up

Meanwhile a wholesome police shake-up is promised for the Bright Light district, where detectives ever since the murder of Arnold Rothstein have demonstrated a remarkable inability to solve a single mystery. At the same time, authorities have identified as "important" twelve gangs in greater New York, and each of these in turn is definitely associated with various night clubs and speakeasies, owned, controlled and frequented by its members. Other "hot-spots" and "speakies," supposed to be under independent management, pay huge toll to the gangs that "protect" them and sell them liquor.

In a single 24-hour roundup of undesirable characters, 996 of these places were reported to the police commissioner as the habitual resorts of criminals.

But there is another reason, and a very human one, why the underworld is seeking to preserve the all-night night clubs. It wants them for its own amusement and prestige. They represent, in the mind of the mobster, the triumph of a new social order—the acceptance, by society, of the underworld's upper crust.

Evening clothes, beautiful women, gayety and money spell respectability to the gangman. And there is nothing that he desires quite so much, having by one process or another gained the wherewithal, as to go high-hat and get away with it.

Products of Prisons

He was born poor, this gangster, and has served his apprenticeship in reformatories and perhaps prisons. He has joined a mob out of what he considered was necessity, and has become an extortionist and murderer out of pure greed. In his own habits, he is temperate, seldom gets intoxicated, seldom uses dope. Narcotics are employed in dominating others, however, for he supplies them.

But what he does not realize until too late is that power is a drug, too. By the time he becomes a big shot he cannot quit the racket. He owes too many favors and knows too much of other men. Unless he becomes strongly intrenched politically he knows that sudden death is waiting just around the corner.

So he becomes a social climber, and goes to the night club for his entree. From his "wise guy corner" he sees folk prominent in society, politics and legitimate business. He apes their manners, and tells the entertainers to be nice to the men he admires. He is thrilled by the association, and knows that the feeling is reciprocated.

If he has a sense of humor, he must chuckle now and then. For these are the very suckers who have swept him to wealth and power.

Today's Bridge

BY EDWARD C. WOLFE

Member of the National Championship Auction Team

After an adversary has opened the bidding, an informatory double is indicative of much greater strength than a simple overcall. A simple overcall usually signifies about two honor tricks and a fair five-card suit.

In contract, however, it is exceedingly important to advise your partner of any additional high card strength and this can best be accomplished by first doubling the adversary and later showing your own suit if partner's bid is not acceptable.

The Bidding

First round: North one spade, East double, South pass, West one no trump.

Second round: North pass, East two hearts, South pass, West three hearts.

Third round: North pass, East four hearts, South pass, West pass.

Note that East has the necessary high card strength (namely, not less than three honor tricks) to justify an informatory double.

NORTH—DEALER
S—A-K-6-4-3
H—K-4
D—6-5-2
C—K-7-3

WEST
S—10-9-8-7
H—J-7-5
D—Q-7-4
C—A-9-8

EAST
S—J
H—A-Q-10-9-8
D—A-10-9-8
C—Q-J-10

SOUTH
S—Q-5-2
H—6-3-2
D—K-J-3
C—6-5-4-2

On the other hand, should East overcall North's one spade with two hearts, West has a right to infer that the hand is only one of average defensive strength, about two honor tricks, and of course a fair five-card suit.

In that event, West must pass for the reason that his heart support (J-7-5) is insufficient to justify a raise if his partner had only a minimum overcall bid. In order for West to have raised this two heart overcall he should have had at least four hearts or three headed by a high honor and high card tricks or distributional tricks on the side.

However, after West's minimum one no trump response to his partner's informatory double, and East's later takeout bid of two hearts, West has a much different picture of his partner's strength. West now figures that East's direct inference of high card strength by his informatory double now justifies a raise to three hearts which, of course, East carries to a game going contract.

The negative inference which one gains from his partner's refusal to double an adversary's original bid but simply overcalls, is one of the most important principles of contract bidding, and the expert utilizes this inference with marvelous success.

It is well to call attention to the fact that a bid of three hearts by East over North's original one spade, although a jump overcall, is not a forcing bid. Mr. Sidney Lenz, one of the country's great bridge players, has the following to say in this connection: "As nothing can be gained by forcing my partner to bid under such circumstances, I do not believe it to be sound tactics to use this as a demand bid. After the enemy have opened the auction, few games can be made unless the partner is able to produce a trifle more than one quick trick, and then he will respond voluntarily."

Stripes and Plaids for Spring

Stripes or plaids, take your pick, but you must have one or the other to be in the van of spring fashions. One of the newest ways to use plaids is to have the blouse and scarf of it, worn with a monotone suit. One of the new kray suits (left), that new color that promises such popularity, has a luscious scarf and blouse of pastel greens, blues, gray and a line of off-black in a tone that makes it almost purple. Very smart and new is the white linen frock (right), that has the loveliest bit of color in the way of stripes of gay tone for the turned-back revers, for the front of the belt and banding around the bottom of the circular skirt. This sports frock features tiny cap sleeves and a beret of the linen to match the frock.

One Hundred Years Old, Lives On Farm Grandfather Bought

Washington, Pa. (AP)—On a portion of 310 acres of land for which her grandfather gave a gun, horse, blanket and $19.97 Mrs. Jan Ann May lives in fair health at the age of 100.

Mrs. May's grandfather bought the 310 acres after he had moved from other land following a dispute with George Washington over title rights.

The farm on which Mrs. May lives is owned by her brother, Joseph Reed, 88. The farm is near Venice and is the one on which she was born December 28, 1830.

On September 28, 1784, George Washington wrote in his diary: "David Reed: 2 acres of meadow, 17 acres of arable; a good logged dwelling house with a bad roof; several other small houses and an indifferent barn or stable; bad fences, but very good land."

He wrote also: "Dined at David Reed's . . . and consulted with the settlers on these lands."

The settlers, however, refused to either buy or lease from Washington and subsequently moved.

A delicious graham loaf is made from the following recipe which comes from Mrs. Grant Hamm of Iron Mountain, who was the former Miss Gertrude Geniesse of this city:

Graham Loaf

Two cups white flour; two sups graham flour; two cups sweet milk; two cups white sugar; four teaspoons baking powder; two teaspoons salt; one cup walnuts, one egg, well beaten.

Mix dry ingredients and add milk, egg and walnuts. Beat. Let stand in loaf pan twenty minutes, to rise. Bake slowly.

Girl to Instruct Turkish Children In American Play

Angora, Turkey, (AP) — —The American gift for play is to be instilled in the children of Asia Minor by a young daughter of a former governor of Smyrna.

Armed with a master's degree from the department of hygiene and physical instruction of Wellesley college, she has returned to Angora, to train teachers of physical instruction who will spread American methods throughout Anatolia.

"Of course Turkish children have always played," Miss Isban says, "but they have played as individualists, a lonely sort of play. What I want to spread in Turkey is the gift for team-work for which America is famous."

She also hopes to organize gymnastics for adults, especially for the too sedentary officials of the Turkish capital.

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

You should learn to know your nose for its full beauty value. No one nose holds absolute records for perfection. You may have a sassy little up-tilted nose and, combined with a few freckles and wide-spaced eyes, it may be the loveliest nose in the world for you.

Big noses, moreover, are not always a handicap. There are many lovely women with noses quite a bit larger in proportion than their other features and it gives them a certain strength in their facial beauty.

If your nose is a size and shape that just makes you miserable, you can, of course, have it altered surgically. But it is an expensive operation, none but the best should do it, and it isn't a pleasant operation. Lots of times women worry about their noses when they are perfectly all right in shape, only happen to be of the shiny variety or inclined to redness which has nothing to do with the size.

When there are warts on the nose, they should be taken off. There is no excuse for these blemishes, since their removal is easily accomplished by experts and the expense negligible considering the results.

But when your nose is oily or inclined to shininess, to black heads or enlarged pores, you most certainly should do something about it immediately. We have just taken up the subject of the blackheads. The treatment of oily skin is persistent cleanliness. Wash it often with hot water and the finest of castile or other bland soap, or one of the soap substitutes. Do not rub hard, merely soap and rinse; and soap and rinse until the nose is clean. After washing and rinsing, use a good astringent. Finish off with powder, put on by a clean puff or a clean bit of absorbent cotton.

If your nose is red, that is another matter again. Redness may be caused by external or internal conditions and you may need physical care. Sluggish circulation, digestive disorders or the constant use of too hot beverages may cause your red nose. These are matters for the physician, not the beautician.

If your red nose comes from long exposure to cold, that can be remedied by shielding it with your muff, your hat or coat collar. If it is poor circulation, you might try a mild solution of alum water, alternating bathing your face in it with dashes of hot and cold water.

If it is mere shininess or oiliness that you suffer from, however, you can do much to improve it. Start immediately and keep it up. You won't know your nose within a month, if you get its skin all nice and fine.

Wolves

Not Many Left In U. P., Says Game Warden

Newberry.—During the last hunting season three large wolves were killed in the Two Heart region north of Newberry. Three packs with at least 10 wolves in each pack were reported by a hunting party to be ranging this district at that time. This winter occasional reports of wolf signs along the northern reaches of the Tahquamenon river and Two Heart Lake has been received by H. P. Williams, leader of predatory animal control, with headquarters at Munising. Mr. Williams has mapped out a campaign in the Two Heart country with the ultimate aim of the extinction of predatory animals there.

Bellanger on Job

R. D. Bellanger of Munising has been assigned the job of preliminary survey of wolves and coyotes. For the past two weeks Mr. Bellanger has gone over miles of the territory on snowshoes, working from the Charcoal-Iron camp 2, some twenty miles north of Newberry. His treks have taken in the swamps and hardwoods of the Tahquamenon and east branch of the Big Two Heart rivers and the country about the Two Heart Lake.

Contrary to reports of conditions found at the Hulbert and McMillan deeryards, Mr. Bellanger says the deer in the Two Heart district are yarding, due to the large amount of snow. Woodcutters report that deer stand about unafraid until a tree is felled when they eat its top, even though the cutter is trimming up the butt. One day Mr. Bellanger came upon a group of 23 deer drinking from the Two Heart. He reports that deer are in good condition here as they have been found in other parts of the peninsula. Coyote are scarce so far north of town but signs of them were found to be plentiful closer to town, where the snow was lighter making foraging easy.

Plan Extermination Drive

According to Mr. Bellanger, most of the reports of wolves were myths. He said he came upon the tracks of two families, of four in each, in widely separated country, and that these tracks were at least a week old. He does not believe that there are more than a dozen wolves in the whole Two Heart region. One day in a dense swamp, he came upon the tracks of a pair of pine marten, an animal rarely seen up here. Years ago they were plentiful in the Upper Peninsula but now are almost extinct. A few remain in the upper finger of Keeweenaw county. There were no signs of the presence of lynx or bobcat and but few of fox. Otter are plentiful along portions of the Tahquamenon and Two Heart.

Mr. Ballenger has recently come from Drummond's Island where he found a few coyote but no wolves. Because of heavy snow, the survey of predatory animals in the Newberry district has been held up considerably, but in a week or so Williams and Bellanger hope to start their extermination campaign.

LOCAL GIRLS MARRY

Word has been received here of the marriage of two former Newberry girls, both graduates of the Newberry high school. Miss Laurel Jean Fyvie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fyvie of Helmer resort was wedded on Jan. 11 in Downey, Cal., to James F. Goldthorpe of Toronto, Canada. The ceremony was read under the palm trees at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. L. C. Barlow, by the Rev. James Robertson, pastor of the Baptist church at Downey. Miss Dorothy Sommersville of Bakersville, and Nathan Barlow attended the couple, who left after the wedding dinner for Maywood, Cal., where they will make their home.

Miss Helen Kiman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kiman was married on Jan. 17, in St. Mary's, Ohio, to James R. Smith, the vows being read by the Rev. William M. Jennings at the Presbyterian Manse. The young couple will make their home in St. Mary's where the groom is connected with the Ohio Electric Power Company. Mrs. Goldthorpe has been a teacher in the Detroit schools. Mrs. Smith has been employed by the Book Estate as cashier and assistant auditor.

BUYS SHOW TICKETS

Manager Thomas Shimmins of the Grand theatre announces that on Friday, J. P. Rahilly, local grocer, has bought out the house and that tickets can be procured by calling on that gentleman. The plan of giving local workingmen and their families tickets for the theatre was started last week when hundreds attended on Tuesday as the guests of Congressman F. P. Bohn. Each week until May some local man will arrange to give free tickets, the idea being that with the wages cut as they are it is impossible for many to have this recreation unless some such arrangement is made.

E. A. Borson, for several years connected with the Horner plant at this city has gone to Dollar Bay to join the force of the new plant being constructed there by Sam Horner. Mrs. Borson and son will join him in the spring.

Newberry Sawmill Starts Night Run

Newberry, Feb. 2. (Special)—The night run was started on Monday, Feb. 2 at the saw mill of the Newberry Lumber and Chemical company. Lawrence Redmond, superintendent of the mill, announced that the added crew numbers about 24 and is made up from former employees and those who have been on part time work in other departments. There will be no outside men given work at this time, the management announces.

The night run was decided upon because the yards are filling up with logs and although there is no market for lumber at this time, the cost of a double run is proportionately smaller than one run a day.

Newberry Hockey Team Wins One

Newberry, Feb. 2 (Special)—The Newberry hockey team won a game on Sunday, playing with the fast Soo bunch on the Nelson ice here. It was a good fast game with the local boys showing the results of their practice during the past few weeks. The score was five to three, Ghrna making three of the goals and Kip McMullen making the other two, with assistance from Ghrna.

The Newberry line was: centers DeCook and Brotherton; McMullen, lw; Anderson and Detzler, rw; Fraser and Marlett, lw; Campbell, goal, and Ghrna and Poney McMullen on reserve.

The visitors lined as follows: center, W. Kline; goal, George Ware; DeBoer and Young right and left defence; Hodge and Kline right and left wings; Hawkes, Hasen and Davidson, spares. Goals were made DeBoer and the two Kline boys, each scoring one. George Peters of Newberry was referee.

Newberry will meet the Escanaba bunch on next Sunday and are expecting to give a good account of themselves. A new man has been added, Jack Korpi, who has played with the local boys other years and he is expected to operate on right wing.

The gallery has been small at previous games but Manager Fraser reports that they are expecting to arrange for a reduction in the admission price and so will have better attendance.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid will meet on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mike Seibert at 2:30.

A birthday tea will be given by the members of the Methodist ladies' aid on Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the church to which the public is invited.

NEWBERRY WINS

Newberry, Feb. 2. (Special)—The threat of the Munising Legion team proved weak when the Newberry bunch faced them on the local floor on Friday night. For one thing, Lavender, Larson, Thorson and Fyvie were teammates on the high school machine of a year or so ago and knew how to work for each other. Also their ability to make baskets from almost anywhere on the floor proved the undoing of the visitors. The game was of a more exciting calibre than the box score would indicate although the gallery was small.

For Ginger's Sake

justified its existence. There were no preachers to ask a blessing on the spaghetti and ginger ale. There were no drooling infants fatly fingering the tinseled tassels of the evening wraps. There were no paternal smiles and no maternal nudges to express a smug and admiring approval, to suggest a courtesy or curb an impulse.

"Let the spaghetti be unconfined!" exulted Ginger.

It was at Bard's suggestion, he being rather better versed in the doings of Bohemia than the rest of them, that now and then Pietro himself, in crisp, enveloping white apron and jaunty cap, should fare forth among the guests to serve them with fresh spaghetti hot from a huge bowl. It was upon one of these errands, when Bard was giving him a whispered word of instruction, that Pietro got his face well behind the spaghetti bowl to whisper a query of his own.

"Uh—how about a little—uh—something extra—in your ginger ale?" he suggested.

"Have you got it?" ejaculated Bard with a surprise that was not simulated.

"Got it? Sure I got it!"

Bard looked interested, hesitated doubtfully. "I don't know," he said. "You go on out to the kitchen and wait for me. I'll come out there. Excuse me, Eddy, could I speak to you a minute?"

The two men moved away from the table, conferred in whispers, moved slowly toward the kitchen.

"Do you suppose the girls would like a little?" suggested Bard.

"Gosh, no. Why, those girls still think the fruit of the vine means jelly!" ejaculated Eddy.

They were close to the kitchen entrance.

"How long has that bird been in town?" he asked.

"Just today. Got here this morning."

"Pretty quick work. Where do you suppose he got hold of it?"

At sight of them the stolid Pietro produced a ginger ale bottle and a couple of cups. "Say when," he snickered.

"Where'd you get it?" demanded Eddy. "It's not at all bad—though I'm no judge."

"Oh, you always come across it," said Pietro evasively. "Pretty good, yes?"

"Have another," suggested Bard. "You're not peddling this around in there, are you?"

"Who, me?" was the indignant rejoinder. "Me, I'm a cook. Say, I'm no bootlegger. I got this for my own use. You're my friends, ain't you? Friends of little Nicolo, and all. Have another?"

"No thanks. Put it away and keep it out of sight."

"And if we catch you passing it around the crowd in there we'll turn you over to the sheriff. This state is dry."

"Yeh?" said Pietro with an interested grin.

As they made their way back they discussed it. "I don't like it," said Eddy Jackson. "He got hold of it too quick. We don't work as fast as that out here."

"Half of those kids are still in high school, aren't they?" asked Bard uneasily.

"Yes. And Ginger's responsible for this. She can call it Ben and Jenky's place all she likes, it's her money doing it and I know it."

"Keep an eye on all three of them," suggested Bard. "They can't get away with anything without our catching them."

Free Cooking School For Wives of Needy

Grand Rapids, Feb. 2 (AP)—Because they believe many housewives who receive municipal financial assistance are not economical cooks, City Manager George W. Welsh and Leslie A. Butler, superintendent of schools, are arranging free cooking classes for the women of needy families.

Food obtained through the assistance of the city, Welsh believes, is not being made to do the work it should. To remedy this, he has requested that the cooking classes stress the elimination of waste and the use of leftovers. The families, he believes, will benefit, and the city will be saved expense.

In addition, the services of a cooking expert have been obtained to prepare a pamphlet of recipes which will be distributed among fmilies receiving municipal aid. The recipes are for balanced, attractive meals that can be prepared with a minimum cost.

Woodchuck Breaks Tradition; Fails To Look for Sun

Yesterday was groundhog day. No ground hog saw his shadow yesterday in this vicinity, for the sky was heavily clouded. According to the old tradition the groundhogs emerge from their subterranean habitations on the second day of February to take a look about. If the sun is shining bright enough to permit them to cast a shadow they may remain outside the balance of the winter, but if they cannot see their shadows upon that day they crawl back in their hole and go to sleep for six weeks longer.

In order to verify the tradition Ben Brown's woodchuck, which he captured two months ago and placed in a basket in his basement, was closely observed yesterday, but the animal never made a move. He remained in the same camatose condition as when first captured. To all appearances he is asleep, with his head curled down between his front paws, showing no visible sign that he was aware that it was the second day of February and that he ought to get outside and see if he could measure his shadow. The conclusion deduced from observation of Brown's woodchucks are unreliable barometers, that they know nothing about the weather, but merely hole in and stay in their holes until the snow is gone. Much interest was manifested among Munising residents yesterday in any possible movement that Brown's woodchuck might make and during the day we received numerous inquiries.

That he is still alive is quite evident, for his body is limber, he has been lying in a warm place for 2 months, where a dead rabbit started to decompose in two days, and the fleas still stick to him, and it is said that fleas will not cling to a dead body. But he has disappointed us all and we shall have no further confidence in the woodchuck as a weather prophet. He has ruined the reputation of the woodchuck family and left us without the consolation of believing that the back bone of winter was broken when ever the sun shone on the second day of February.

Three Men Arrested For Robbing Camp

Munising, Feb. 2 (Special)—Two weeks ago a search warrant was issued by Justice Tracy for searching the premises of Ray Bell for property that had been taken from the University of Michigan forestry school camp, located about ten miles from Munising.

The property was found at Bell's home, and consisted of a large cooking stove. This search led to the arrest of Ray Bell, Earl Benjamin and Arnold Weaver, this week Thursday. They were arraigned before Justice Tracy Friday afternoon and waived examination and were bound over to the June term of the circuit court, bonds for Bell and Benjamin being fixed at $500 each, and bonds for Weaver, who is a minor, being fixed at $100. It is expected that they will soon be able to furnish the bonds for their release.

Edward Cassidy is named as one of the parties who took a hand in the theft, but Cassidy is now serving a ten year sentence in Jackson prison. Thefts of camp and resort property have been of rather frequent occurrence during the past few years, but the thieves have been enabled to make their escape without leaving any clues that would lead to an arrest in almost every case, and it has been somewhat discouraging to those who have fitted out camping places and built up resort property to think that their hunting lodges and cottages were not safe from the depredations of thieves.

SENDS THREAT LETTER

Levi Steinhoff of Brown's addition was arrested Thursday on a charge of sending a threatening letter to a woman who lived in his neighborhood. He was arraigned before Justice Tracy and fined $10 and costs.

FR. TOM HAS OPERATION

Father Thomas Drengacz, popularly known as "Father Tom" was operated on for appendicitis at St. Mary's hospital at Marquette Friday morning and is now reported to be doing well. "Fr. Tom" came to Munising several days ago to direct the home talent play, "The Wedding Slipper," which was to have been given under the auspices of the Lady Foresters, but was taken ill here and the play was postponed indefinitely on that account:

MUNISING BRIEFS

Sheriff Runsat and wife left this week for Jackson and Detroit with the prisoners sentenced at this week's term of court. Among the number was one woman.

A regular meeting of the Eastern Star will be held Thursday, Feb. 5.

There was not a single death in the city of Munising during the month of January, according to the records of Wm. Bowerman, undertaker. This is unusual for this time of the year.

Ice is still very thin in the west channel, not more than one to two inches. During the past few days crossings have been made from Grand Island to the landing at Powell's Point, but a heavy wind may at any time break up the ice.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee White, Jr., returned home from Houghton last Saturday.

Harley Hill is back from Cleveland where he has been employed for several months past. He has resumed his position in the office of the Munising Woodenware.

Mrs. L. E. Adams, who was operated on two weeks ago, has been dismissed from the hospital and is now at home.

ROTARY HEARS HIGHWAY FACTS

Division Engineer Talks On Road Problems and Finances

The tremendous problems faced by highway builders in the construction of roads for the use of a constantly increasing automotive traffic, were made the subject of a most interesting address delivered yesterday before the Escanaba Rotary club by J. T. Sharpensteen, division engineer for the Michigan state highway department, with headquarters in Escanaba.

Mr. Sharpensteen included in his address statistics showing that the total mileage of all roads in the world is approximately 7,800,000 miles, of which approximately 3,000,000 miles are in the United States. The next highest road mileage boasted by any nation is 675,000 miles located in Japan. Mr. Sharpensteen also recited statistics to show that the total number of automobiles in the United States in 1929, was 26,500,000, ninety per cent of which were manufactured in Michigan, and that since the introduction of automobiles a total of 35,000,000 have been manufactured. He also showed that the annual replacement of worn out automobiles in the United States assumes the astounding total of 3,000,000 cars.

Annex Township Roads

The local engineer showed that the people of the United States have invested in modern highways a total of $1,750,000,000 and then painted a most interesting picture of Michigan's annual contribution to this great investmen, as a means of coping with traffic demands in this center of automobile manufacture. The speaker described the organization of the state highway department and detailed the funds that annually come to that department for use in retiring road bonds, maintaining highways already constructed, constructing new highways and in assisting county highway departments in both maintaining and building new highways that do not come under state supervison.

Mr. Sharpensteen called attention that has been introduced at Lansing, providing for the gradual taking over of all township roads by the state and county departments, calling attention to the fact that township road officials in Michigan now expend approximately $14,000,000 annually in road construction and maintenance work.

The address was filled with most interesting information and the speaker was rewarded with a real ovation when he had concluded.

Beaver Island Deer Likes Village Best

St. James, Mich., Feb. 2 (AP)—A deer that prefers life in this village to that in its natural forest habitat is giving conservation officers something to puzzle about. All attempts to return the animal, a full grown doe, to the forest have failed. The deer always comes back. Residents of this Beaver Island village are fearful dogs will bring the animal to harm.

The animal is one of a herd of 80 deer on the island, propogated from an original group of 14 which was brought from near Saginaw. Pheasants also have been introduced successfully and muskrats are increasing in number.

Red Cross Quota Nearly Complete

Public spirited citizens and organizations are contributing rapidly and plentifully in donations to fill the $200 quota which has been set for the Schoolcraft County Red Cross chapter to aid the suffering and destitute in the drought-stricken regions of the country in the nation-wide drive which has been in effect for the past two weeks. Only $21.50 is still needed to fill the quota and woth many civic organizations meeting this week, it is expected that the balance will be received within the next few days.

Explanation of the refusal of the American Red Cross to administer a $25,000,000 general relief fund proposed to be voted by congress, is explained by John Barton Payne, chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, in last Sunday's issue of the Escanaba Daily Press. Many local residents have not donated to the aforementioned cause because they did not understand the position which the Red Cross took in refusing the proposed fund.

Those who recently contributed to swell the fund to $178.50 are as follows:

Non-Cutting Glass In France

Flexible glass which does not cut when broken into pieces, may be used for windows of railroad cars and buses in France. French lines are testing it. The new glass does not contain any wire enforcement, and is unlike any other previously made. Upon being broken the glass crushes into thousands of tiny pieces, similar to gravel, and may be handled without fear of injury from cuts.

During the past 20 years Prof. Frederick H. Seares of the University of California has counted and classified more than 70,000 stars.

WILL APPRAISE LOCAL SCHOOLS

Board Acts to Arrive at More Adequate Insurance Sked

In order to arrive at a more adequate insurance schedule and to avoid the possibility of loss through over or under coverage, an immediate appraisal of the Gladstone public school system has been ordered by the board of education.

In approving the plan it was pointed out that the procedure would give defendable records in inventory and appraisal which would thoroughly protect the city's interests. Insurance companies pay only the amount of loss proved, and at present without complete records of equipment or accurate valuation of buildings, would have to take an adjuster's estimate of loss incurred, in the event of fire. The work, when completed, will give definite and sure proof of loss, should the occasion demand, as appraisals are always accepted without question.

A Chicago firm of appraisal engineers have been engaged and the work will be begun shortly. The work is carried out in minute detail, even to the making of maps of each room upon which each article in the room is located and listed.

Yearly Maintenance

The board also subscribed to yearly maintenance with the same firm. This service includes compiling, at least once a year and without special notice, a summary of up-to-date values, taking into account changes reported subsequent to the original appraisal — whether additions, deductions or transfers—revaluing all property to provide for fluctuations in market prices of materials, labor and equipment, analysition and redetermination of depreciations.

With this system in vogue, it is a simple and sure matter to determine the loss of the event of fire or theft. The appraisal firm is notified and one of their engineers, with the aid of data collected during their survey, will furnish positive proof of loss which will then be turned over to the insurance company for collection.

Appraisal work is scheduled for completion by March 1, after which insurance on each unit of the school system will be adjusted accordingly.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—The stock market, indolent as the sleepy ground hog, spent most of today in hibernation. However, it did emerge from its burrow of dullness in the final hour of trading, sufficiently roused to close with small net gains.

There was scarcely enough activity to move prices either way up to mid-afternoon. The day's news, although not particularly startling, was of a color to please the shorts, for two of the Standard Oil companies and a large metal producer cut their dividends. Sales reports of the leading mail order houses for January showed material declines in comparison with a year ago, and bar silver weakened.

The market was mostly lower while these announcements were being digested, but so inert did the trading become that only 200,000 shares changed hands between noon and 2:10 o'clock. Activity during the late improvement was sufficient to bring the day's business to approximately 1,200,000 shares.

Baking shares rallied moderately in response to the change of management in Ward, and unofficial reports that Continental's earnings were well maintained in 1930. Oils refused to be much disturbed by the dividend action on Standards of Indiana and Kansas, nor were the metals bothered by International Nickel's cut. The utilities dropped at times, but American Telephone more than made up a 2 point loss. Steels and some of the specialties came forward with gains of a point or so, which prevailed at the close.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Can, Westinghouse, Vanadium, Worthington Pump, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco B, Atchison, Southern Railway and American Tobacco B were up 1 to 1¾.

The money markets gave no indication that a new month, with its usual demands for funds, had arrived. Dividend and interest payments during February, it is estimated, will total around half a billion, a large portion of which fell due today. Short term interest rates remained unchanged, even in the unofficial call market where accommodation could be had at one per cent. The extent to which cash is piling up at this center was reflected in the billion dollar increase in deposits of the 116 members of the New York clearing house association during the last quarter of 1930.

Renewed weakness of silver, which touched a new low here on a loss of half a cent, was accompanied by reports that there would be no loan to China. Shanghai exchange sagged, but European rates made only nominal gains.

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—Liquidation in Peruvian bonds on the prospect that the republic may seek a moratorium on its external debt shared interest with the downward movement of U. S. governments in the bond market today.

Peruvian governments broke from 4 to 10 points as a result of fresh apprehension that the government may stop service on its external debt which amounts to approximately $100,000,000 until normal conditions are restored. The decline which carried them down to around the lows touched last summer following the revolution, was accompanied by sympathetic reactions in other Latin American issues, notably Chilean, Colombian and Bolivian issues. The others were off a point or two.

U. S. Bonds Retreat.

The retreat of U. S. governments was slower and selling not as extensive as in the closing days of the previous week. At the day's lows, long term Treasury issues were off as much as ¾ of a point but the group recovered some ground. Treasury 4¼s which with Treasury 3 3-8s of 1943-47 showed the biggest loss of the day with a drop of 3-8 of a point sold off 15-16ths at one time. The one exception to the lower trend were Liberty 1st 4¼s which closed 3-43nds higher.

Houses specializing in governments see little likelihood of the government group regaining stability until congress disposes of the bonus question, and investors in corporate domestic issues are expected to exercise greater caution. New financing is expected to slow up.

Prime investment bonds were fairly steady, on narrow fluctuations either way but the second grade rails were again lower and utility and industrials in the same class eased.

Aside from the drop in Latin Americans other features in the foreign group were the dip of German 7s below par before firming and softness in Mexicans.

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—W. B. Storey, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, said today that the road ended 1930 with cash of about $20,692,000 and government securities of $18,486,000 or a total of close to $51,180,000 in cash and securities. Although this was a decrease of about $4,000,000 in cash and $26,000,000 in securities from the close of 1929, he said, it still left the company with more cash and securities was due to financing the capital expenditure program from Treasury resources.

Hupp Motor Car Corp. shipped 1,561 cars last month, against 253 in December and 2,255 in January of last year. Retail sales during the last week in January were reported the largest since the week ended Oct. 11 last.

Net imports of cattle hides during 1930 were approximately 32 per cent less than the previous year, the current bulletin of the New York hide exchange shows. Finished stocks of sole leather in the hands of tanners and sole cutters Dec. 31 was equal to 7.4 months' supply at the average rate of deliveries to date, compared with 3.7 months supply at the end of Dec. 1929.

Howard E. Cole, vice president and a director of Standard Oil Co. of New York, has retired. Philo W. Parker has been elected a director and William B. Walker vice president.

Benjamin M. Tassie has been elected president of Manning Bowman & Co., to succeed the late Reginald P. Tracy.

Frank T. Hulswitt, president of American Commonwealths Power Corp., announced the corporation has sold its controlling interest in National Gas & Electric Corp. which was acquired in 1929 through purchase of all the common stock of the National Gas & Power Corp. He said the sale was arranged to facilitate a reorganization of the capital structure of National Gas & Electric.

In connection with the proposed acquisition by Radio-Keith-Orpheum of the assets of Pathe Exchange, Inc., it was learned that the suit brought by Sol Karp and others for an injunction to prevent the sale is still pending.

RADIO

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—The Three Doctors—for a time as The Three Bakers—are coming back to chain radio.

They're not to have a sponsor this time, but will be a sustaining feature, which in broadcast parlance means a program presented without compensation.

The Three Doctors are Russell Pratt, Ransome Sherman and Joe Rudolph, who made a name for their hodge podge programs at WMAQ, Chicago. Their new program, which is to be heard each Thursday on WABC and stations from 4 to 4:30., starts February 5.

It will be their second introduction to the Columbia chain, which had them on for three weeks under a sponsor. They went off because, they said, they refused to be "conventionalized" or become "continuity readers." It was said also that letters of protest came from the industry their programs were intended to boost. It was contended, rather, that there was too much "ridicule."

They are to have a free hand in the conduct of their new feature, which will originate from WMAQ as key station. Their local programs at WMAQ will continue.

Two new dramatic features start tomorrow evening. J. P. McEvoy, outhor, writes the script for one, "Daddy and Rollo," while Richie Craig, Jr., vaudeville star, appears in the other. Both are to be carried by the WABC network.

"Daddy and Rollo," a 15-minute program to be presented each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:45 p. m. is somewhat of an innovation for radio. It is to depict the efforts of a father to explain "hows and whys" to his son. Nick Dawson takes the part of daddy, and 11 year old Donald Hughes is Rollo.

Craig is to present what he describes as a "talkie" series each Tuesday at 10:15 p. m. It will be his first introduction to chain radio, although he has appeared from individual stations heretofore.

Veterans of foreign wars are to present a special broadcast from 8:30 to 9 p. m. from Washington over the WJZ network. Speakers will include Paul C. Wolman, national commander; Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs; Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired, and Senator David Reed of Pennsylvania.

LIGHT TRADING FEATURES CURB

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—Prices fluttered uncertainly in a day of light trading in today's curb market.

Oils were but a little depressed by reduction of the Standard of Indiana dividend, utilities held about steady, and price trends in the industrials and specialties were irregular. Transactions aggregated 340,000 shares, or 60,000 less than Friday's.

Indiana sold down to 35 1-8 and closed at 35½, off ¾. The dividend was reduced from $2.50 to $2 annually. Standard of Nebraska, Vacuum and Humble all lost about as much, but Gulf closed ¼ of a point higher and Cities Service, which is unofficially understood to have acquired control of Warner Quinlan and a large block of Richfield, was steady, finishing up 1-8.

In the utilities, such issues as Electric Bond and Share, American Superpower and Associated Gas A ended the day unchanged. American Gas and Electric sagged ⅜ of a point, and Middle West lost nearly as much. American Commonwealths A worked a little higher.

In the industrials, such specialties as Dresser A, Novadel Agene and Silica Gel gained a point or two. Ford, Ltd., dipped, then rallied to close 1-8 higher, in a fair turnover.

Aluminum Co. lost nearly 7 points, net, Western Air Express and Pie Bakers A, about 2. Gleaner combine dropped more than 2 points to a new low price at 3.

Stage Acts Parts of Junior Class Show

A number of stage acts by students will form part of the entertainment during the annual junior class show which will be presented Wednesday evening at the Rialto theatre. Among them will be dance numbers, songs, and band selections. Arrangements for the show have been made by a class committee, assisted by Howard Sundblad, junior class advisor.

Two dance numbers, "A Dainty Miss" dance and a clog dance, will be presented by members of the dancing classes of Miss Elsa D. Haller, under whose direction they were prepared. Those in the former will be Marjorie O'Brien, Patricia Mottle, Beverly Brunette, Naomi Staple, Kathleen Lauscher and Stella D'Amour, while the clog steps will be done by Jane Warner, Dorothy Tumath, Ruth Kee, Regina Formoe, Adelle Anderson and Ruth Warner. Band and glee club numbers have been prepared under the direction of Merl D. Williams, instructor of music.

These entertaining numbers will be in addition to the feature talkie, "Remote Control," featuring William Haines.

Progress of the ticket sale, started some ten days ago, indicate that capacity crowds will view the performances. Proceeds will be placed in a fund to finance the Junior Prom.

Rotes Hear Address On Soldiers' Bonus

An interesting address on the Soldiers' Bonus was presented by O. K. Fjetland before the Gladstone Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon-meeting yesterday noon in the Legion hall.

The speaker advocated immediate payment of the remainder of the soldiers' insurance on the theory that the placing of this amount of money in circulation would be a great stimulant to business. He stated that approximately $750,000 had already been paid and proposed the floating of a bond issue by the government to raise the unpaid balance of $2,250,000. This amount, distributed throughout the entire country, he believed, would go a long way toward the relief of manufacturers and retailers and would start things back toward normalcy.

THEATRES

RIALTO

Just as Paul Whiteman himself stands supreme in the world of music, so his first starring picture, Universal's "King of Jazz," which opened at the Rialto Theatre last night, stands supreme in the world of entertainment.

It is without doubt the most tuneful, the most prodigal, the most uniformly magnificent production which has ever reached the screen.

This colossal revue is an all-Movietone and all-Technicolor medley of inspiring spectacle, bewitching melody, matchless dancing, clever specialties and hilarious comedy. And in all of these its excellence is surpassing.

If any particular features of so great an achievement as "King of Jazz" can be segrated for special praise, then those features must be the truly marvelous music reproduction of the spectacle numbers, notably the "Melting Pot;" the gorgeous dancing throughout the picture, and the featured numbers of John Boles and Jeanette Loff.

Will Continue Business

St. Ignace.—E. E. Thomas, St. Ignace and Sault restauranteur, who has recently been adjudged bankrupt, spent several days in the city during the past week. Mr. Thomas stated that his liabilities were greatly exaggerated.

The Sault venture, he said, was a losing proposition from the start and that promises made to him were unkept. He hopes to arrange matters that he can continue to operate his St. Ignace restaurant and is seeking assistance to this end. His creditors here, he said, had intimated a desire to render aid, as the business here was a success and growing better each season.

Bell Boy Steals $400

Iron Mountain.—After a futile effort to escape from Sheriff Rudolph Freeman, Thomas O'Brien, 22, night bell hop at the Millman hotel, this morning was placed behind the bars of the Dickinson county jail following his theft of more than $400 from the hotel. Most of the money was recovered.

The robbery occurred between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, while the night clerk, Frank Charlette, son of E. P. Charlette, manager of the hotel, was taking a nap on a davenport in the lobby. Charlette awakened at 5:30 o'clock and, noticing that O'Brien was not around, began to search for him. He did not pay much attention to the absence of the missing bell hop, however, until he walked into a private office where he had left a suit of clothes on a hanger.

Then he saw that the suit was gone and immediately the thought flashed upon him that O'Brien had taken it.

Pennsylvania Revises Entire Athletic System

OVEREMPHASIS CAUSES ACTION

Training Tables; Spring Training Eliminated in New Policy

Philadelphia, Feb. 2. (AP)—Sweeping and sensational changes in the entire athletic system of the University of Pennsylvania, designed to eliminate so-called over-emphasis from competitive sports, were announced tonight by Thomas S. Gates, university president, as the result of an exhaustive survey of conditions here and elsewhere.

Effective at once, the president's statement of policy reveals the decision to eliminate athletic training tables and spring football practice, to readjust intercollegiate schedules and reduce intersectional competition, to install all coaches as faculty members and abolish the present council on athletic control.

Under the shake-up, the trustees and president of the university will exercise full responsibility, Mr. Gates announced, through a newly-created department of physical education, which will have control of student health, physical instruction and the entire range of intercollegiate athletics.

Three Divisions.

To fill the important post as dean of the department of physical education, Mr. Gates announced with his report, the appointment of Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, a well known Pennsylvania all-around athlete in 1910-12 and for the last 17 years at Swarthmore college as athletic director.

There will be three divisions of the new department of physical education—student health, physical instruction and inter-collegiate athletics, each in charge of a director.

Although the present council on athletics, composed of alumni, students and faculty, which has had control of competitive sports independent of administrative officers, will be abolished, some of its members later may be included in an advisory board of athletics.

All coaches, in addition to being required to serve as faculty in the department of physical education, with academic rank, will be employed on a full-time basis and their salaries definitely established on the same scale applying to other members of the university faculty.

Subject to control by the university administration, however, coaches now under contract will continue to function as previously. The only long-term contracts involved are those of Russell S. Callow, rowing coach, through 1932; Lon M. Jourdet, basketball, through 1935; Wallace Johnson, tennis, through 1933; and W. S. Merriam, swimming, through 1932. The contracts of all other coaches, including Lawson Robertson in track and Dr. Walter Cariss in baseball, expire at the end of this year. The three year contract of J. R. Ludlow Wray as head football coach, which had two years more to go, already has been broken and Wray dismissed.

Lou Young, former head football coach, loses his $10,000 a year job as assistant to the chairman of the council on athletics. Young's name has been mentioned for the football coaching job. So has that of Lou Little, a Pennsylvanian now at Columbia.

The Swiss Federal Council has outlined to the end of 1933 operations of a law prohibiting the erection of hotels except in cities of more than 100,000 population.

Tri-County League

In a preliminary to the Bevenoc-Crystal Falls Rambler basketball game the Escanaba Ramblers won their 9th straight league game by defeating the Roughhousers 21 to 9. This makes the fifteenth win of the season for the Ramblers.

The Roughhousers led 4 to 1 at the quarter but the Ramblers came back to lead 8 and 7 at the half. In the second half the Rouhhousers were held to 2 points while the Ramblers annexed 13 points. In the last quarter Reidy and Berglund were ejected from the game through the personal four route.

PACKER CAGERS HERE FEB. 10

Large Crowd Expected to See Green Bay Famed Stars

Extensive preparations are being made by the Escanaba Athletic Association for the Ranger-Green Bay Packer basketball game which will be played here next Tuesday evening, February 10. A full house is expected to see the clash as the Packers boast some of the most famous athletes in the country.

In recent games, Johnny Blood, famous ball carrier for the Packer football team, has proved to be the offensive star for the Packer basketball squad. Against the Milwaukee Badgers, Blood scored seven field goals. Other famous football players who will be here with the cage squad are Dilweg, rated with Oosterbaan as the greatest wingman ever developed, Michalske, powerful guard, Engelman, Herber, Darling, and others, all of whom have made football history at Green Bay and have produced national football championships for the Badger city.

Sport fans in this territory have seen these men perform on numerable occasions in moleskins and they know what the Green Bay athletes can do with a football but this is their first opportunity to see these famous athletes do their stuff on the basketball court. They have played many games throughout the middle west this season and have defeated some classy cage squads, proving that are equally at home on the basketball floor as well as the football gridiron.

BEVENOCS LOSE THRILLER, 20-19

Crystal Falls Ramblers Break Winning Streak of Escanaba Quint

In a nip and tuck close guarding affair, the Crystal Falls Ramblers made it one-all in their struggle for peninsula basketball supremacy with the Escanaba Bevenocs by nosing out the Escanabans, 20 to 19, at the Coliseum gymnasium Sunday afternoon. The defeat was the first for the Bevenocs in 22 starts and halted their winning streak at 21 straight, one victory including a 33 to 32 margi nover the Ramblers.

Eddie Chambers provided the big gun for the visitors by scoring 14 of his teams total points while the Bevenoc scoring was well distributed. The game was closely fought throughout, a fact which is indicated by the score by periods: 3 to 3, first period, 9 to 8, favor of Bevenocs at half time; 16 to 15, Ramblers at the three-quarte time, and 20 to 19 at the end.

With the score tied 18-all and less than a minute to play D. Richards sank a long shot for the Ramblers and a few seconds later, S. Warner scored on a foul shot for the Bevenocs.

The Escanabans scored more field goals than the Ramblers but could not connect sufficiently on numerous foul shots. The Ramblers made good on 8 attempts while the Bevenocs connected only 5 times from the charity mark.

A packed house witnessed the fray.

Manager Byrns announced last evening that the Bevenoc's will play the Ramblers again at Crystal Falls on February 23 and will meet them at Escanaba on March 1 in another effort to establish peninsula supremacy. The Bevs will clash with Wakefield here next Sunday afternoon.

SPECIAL TERM LOOMS AHEAD FOR CONGRESS

not the most pleasurable months in the year from the congressional viewpoint on account of the occasional heat spells which the national capitol encounters in the summer time.

Week Tells Story

The president's battle with congress over whether the Red Cross should distribute twenty-five million dollars obtained by involuntary taxation or whether the Red Cross should continue to persuade the people to tax themselves voluntarily is not showing any signs of clearing up. The Democrats are rallying behind their leader, Mr. Robinson, whose own state is affected most severely.

While nobody publicly wants an extra session there is beginning to be less opposition toward it privately on Capitol hill than heretofore. Even if times were normal it would be difficult to prevent a handful of men from forcing an extra session. Some time within the next ten days the leaders of both parties will come to the conclusion that they cannot avoid an extra session, though they will try hard to do so. By holding night sessions congress can frequently expedite bills. Appropriation measures have been known to go through in a single day. And all this depends upon whether the main points of controversy are eliminated.

To go to the country on the plea that millions of persons are starving and that the president is refusing to help them get all the necessary funds is something so plainly a political advantage from the standpoint of the Democrats—at least they think so—that to make an issue of the extra session is not going to be difficult for the minority party. The administration's hope lies in the response of the country to the Red Cross drive, because if the money comes in plentifully there will be no need for a federal appropriation. The next week or so will tell the story.

Campbell Travels 240 In Speed Test; Plans Official Trial Today

Dayton Beach, Fla., Feb. 2 (AP)—Having attained an unofficial speed of 240 miles an hour today, Captain Malcolm Campbell, veteran British race car driver, announced tonight he would make his official trial for the world's land speed record tomorrow, beach and weather conditions permitting.

In one tremendous burst of speed he drove his trim Bluebird racing car over the nine-mile stretch of beach at a rate of approximately four miles a minute, and afterwards declared he was "tickled to death" with the machine's performance.

As Campbell removed his goggles and climbed out off the huge racing car, a crowd of spectators gathered about and cheered.

"The beach was the best I have ever seen it and if it is still good tomorrow, I shall go for the official record then," he said.

Although Campbell's speed today exceeded by approximately nine miles an hour the present world's official land speed record of 231, it was not officially recognized as it was not officially timed. Furthermore, he made only one run, whereas regulations specify a driver must make two trials, one with the wind and the other against it.

Campbell put the 1450 horsepower machine in motion near the north end of the course, but was compelled to stop suddenly when he discovered smoke and flames under the hood. A motorcycle policeman with a fire extinguisher ran up and extinguished the blaze near the carburetor.

Without stopping to inspect the motor Campbell started off again. When he passed the grandstand several miles down the beach, the machine appeared to be functioning perfectly. It flashed by with a mighty roar and in a few seconds had disappeared at the south end of the beach.

The return trip up the beach was made at a slow pace. Campbell explained that he did not care to press his car in pactice.

Odis Porter, official timer for the American Automobile Association, will be on hand tomorrow for the official trials.

TUT LANDS KAYO IN FIRST ROUND

Petrolle Has No Chance Against Minneapolis Speed Scrapper

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY,
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Auditorium, St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 2. (AP)—Billy Petrolle, surprise conqueror of Jimmy McLarnin and Tony Canzoneri, met his waterloo tonight.

Just 24 seconds after he raised his hands to defend himself against the rushes of King Tut, wild swinging youngster from Minneapolis, Petrolle sat on his haunches in his own corner with his head hanging over the second rope—a knockout victim.

A terrific right hand blast to the chin delivered almost before Petrolle knew what hit him, was the punch that did the damage. His knees began to bend and Tut fighting with the ferociousness of a tiger, opened up with a barrage of left and rights to the head. All of these blows found their mark and Petrolle suddenly collapsed. He tried to struggle to his feet at the count of nine, but his benumbed legs refused to respond and he sat there with his head hanging over the ropes, while the referee counted him out.

His First Knockout.

Petrolle, caught in Tut's amazing whirlwind of punches, was unable to land a single blow on his wild-swinging foe. All he could do was to clinch in a courageous effort to survive that first right hand belt to the chin.

The battle was over almost before it started, and the record breaking crowd of 9,500 sat dumbfounded at the startling finish.

The knockout was the first time the battle-scarred Petrolle had ever been counted out, although he had previously lost on technical knockouts, once to Tommy Herman and the last time to Tommy Grogan. The defeat ended one of the most surprising comebacks in lightweight history as Petrolle, decisively whipped by Tut in a Detroit ring 18 months ago, was forced into retirement and then came back to score upset victories over McLarnin and Canzoneri, the latter before he became world's lightweight champion.

The defeat ruined Petrolle's hopes of engaging in another match with McLarnin and also eventually landing a championship contest for the world's lightweight title. At the same time the victory raised Tut's chances of forcing Canzoneri into giving him a chance to win the lightweight championship.

Both Petrolle and Tut easily made the required weight, each scaling 138½ pounds.

Petrolle was guaranteed $15,000, win, lose or draw, the largest purse he ever received in his long career. Tut gambled with the promoters and is assured of at least $10,000.

RANGERS PLAY AT MANISTIQUE

Hard Fought Battle in Prospect as Teams Meet Again

Manistique, Feb. 2 (Special)—Escanaba's home talent basketball team, the Escanaba Rangers, will attempt to wipe out last Wednesday's 34-22 defeat at the hands of the Manistique Legionnaires when they will again lock horns here tomorrow evening in what promises to be a hot battle.

Despite the local's victory last week, Capt. John Kelly's crew will have to be in tip-top form in order to come out ahead in the scoring column, for in winning from the Rangers, the Manistique cagers displayed better form than they have all season.

The Ranger's lineup boasts such stars as Puckelwarts, famous University of Michigan football and diamond star, Christensen, who starred at Michigan State college, and a few other college luminaries. The team is composed of the same court stars who last year played with the Kinkachoos.

The Cooks high school first team will form the opposition for the Manistique high's second team in the preliminary event which will begin at 7:30 o'clock. The main contest will start at 8:30 p. m. with Bill Cook handling the whistle.

Nine On Squad

Members of the Ranger squad who will make the trip to Manistique this evening are Puckelwartz, Schram, Schou, Peltin, DeMars, Rockberg, Kholman, Christensen, Andrews and Coach Brunelle.

Ohio State Loses To Columbia, 30-29

New York, Feb. 2. (AP)—Columbia eked out a 30 to 29 decision over Ohio State in a hard fought basketball game here tonight.

A field goal in the last 15 seconds of play by Lou Bender, Columbia sharpshooter, terminated a game that saw the Lions come from behind with a brilliant burst of basket shooting in the final five minutes.

With Irvin and Hinchman leading the attack and Wesley Fesler, all-American football end holding Bender scoreless, the western conference five piled a 15 to 10 lead at the half, a short passing attack coupled with a beautiful pivoting game kept the westerners out in front until a minute and 35 seconds remained to be played. Meanwhile the Lions had been slowly cutting down the advantage and trailed by only one point, 25 to 24, when Hinchman was forced out of the game with an injured knee.

TRAP RECORD SET BY YOUTH

Bob Henderson Breaks 99 Out of 100; Runs 83 Straight

Last Sunday a youth, barely out of his teens, stepped out at the Chicago & North Western trap grounds and set a record that will give the "old timers" something to shoot at, both literally and figuratively, for some time to come.

The lad was Bob Henderson, who shooting from "scratch," smashed 99 out a possible 100 Blue Rocks, including a run of 83, as they went angling from the trap house. He went "straight on his first three rounds of 25, and looked to be on his way for a 100 run when he dropped his 84th bird. He then came back to break the next 16 for his 99 score.

His score of 83 straight smashed the previous record of 57, held by Hugh Brotherton, Jr., by 26 birds. The record run and the 99 out of 100 score is the best shooting ever done here since the inaguration of the local club, and some of the best shots in this part of the peninsula as well as Wisconsin have shot over the local trap.

Another nice performance was turned in by Mike Aley. The veteran scored 22 in his first round and 24 in his second. Mike was on his way to a "straight" in second round but dropped the last bird.

Sunday's scores indicate that some remarkable scores may be looked for before the end of the season. Sunday's shoot was but the third of the year, and considering some of the marks turned in, other record performances are looked for before long. Trap-shooting has gained rapidly in popularity since the beginning of the club here two years ago, fair-sized squads of shoters attending each of the Sunday events. It is expected that Henderson's record will cause a number of the veterans to uncase their guns in an attempt to show that youth will not lead the way.

Ranger Puck Boys Practice Tonight; Game Next Sunday

Members of the Escanaba Rangers, North Escanaba Hawks and all other skaters interested in hockey are requested to be present at the North Escanaba rink this evening for a practice session under the guidance of Ralph Miller who will select the squad which will comprise the Escanaba Rangers for the games which are to follow. The uniforms for the Rangers have arrived and will be given to the athletes who are selected, Coach Miller announced.

"Every young man who can skate and can handle a stick is invited to this practice," Coach Miller said. "The best talent in the city will be chosen for the Ranger squad. Next Sunday the team will play Iron Mountain here in their second game. Games also are being scheduled with the Marquette Owls, and a Soo team in addition to other strong aggregations."

Small But Speedy "Chummy" Aronson Enters Dog Derby

"Chummy" Aronson, said by his owner to have "lots of speed for his size," and "Pal" Peterson, Scotch collie, are recent entries in the dog derby which will be an important part of the third annual Escanaba winter frolic, Feb. 14 and 15.

Chummy was entered in the class A event last year, for dogs under 20 inches in height, and he was about the smallest dog in the race. Chummy is a hound-shepherd, owned by Alcide Aronson, 207 South 22nd street. Pal's ancestry is Scotch collie, height 23 inches, and he is the property of Donald Peterson, 1216 First avenue south.

The dog derby will be held on First avenue south, between 11th and 13th, and is in charge of the Society 40 and 8 of the American Legion. The race is scheduled for 4 p. m. on Saturday, Feb. 14.

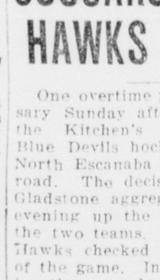
Wilson Signs New Contract With Chicubs

Pittsburgh, Feb. 2 (AP)—Whether Hack Wilson, the Chicago Cubs' home run clouter, obtained the $40,000 a year he was reported to have demanded was unknown tonight, but at least the chunky outfielder was satisfied with the amount he will ceive for the 1931 season.



Hack Wilson

Wilson and William Veeck, president of the Cubs, met here today and came to terms quickly. Wilson signed a one year contract. As is usual in the Cubs' business arangements with the players, the amount the slugger will receive next season was not revealed.

Everything was "OK" to Hack, he said after his conference with Veeck. If it had not been, he added, he would not have signed. The outfielder would not comment on the reports that he had asked for $40,000, which would give him a pay check half the size of Babe Ruth's.

Veeck said the terms also were satisfactory to the club. Asked if Wilson was now the highest salaried player in the National League outside the managerial ranks, Veeck said, "I think he is."

The club executive and Hack shook hands after the signing and the slugger announced that during the coming season he expected to break Babe Ruth's record for home runs.

Wilson, during the 1930 campaign, led the major leagues in home runs with 56 and established a new record for runs batted in, 159. Incidentally, he also was given the most bases on balls, 105.

The Bambino's high in circuit clouts for a season is sixty, made in 1927.

COUGARS PLAY HAWKS TONIGHT

One overtime period was necessary Sunday afternoon to decide the Kitchen's Hawks-Gladstone Blue Devils hockey game at the North Escanaba rink on Sheridan road. The decision went to the Gladstone aggregation, 4 and 3, evening up the count between the two teams. Simonson of the Hawks checked in the first goal of the game. In spite of the soft ice, the game had plenty of speed and a crowd estimated at 300 saw the encounter, which also marked the debut of the new rink.

The Hawks will play another game at their rink tonight, taking on the Cougars of North Escanaba. The game is called for 7 p. m.

Okabee Shows Her Heels to Fast Clan

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—Running a mile and 70 yards as if she was sprinting the usual six furlongs, Okaybee showed one of the best races of her career to carry the silks of Mrs. G. W. Carroll to a thrilling victory in the east coast claiming a handicap at Hialeah Park, Miami, today.

The game five-year old mare heretofore was considered only a sprinter but today she sped over the route in 1:42 1-5 to equal the Hialeah Park record. Uncle Mack Garner got her away fast and she sailed along three lengths in front to the top of the stretch.

The Arden farms' Sun Shadow moved up very fast, however, as the field turned for home. Garner answered the challenge by shaking up his mount and Okaybee clung to her advantage to win by a nose. Sun Shadow beat G. C. Winfrey's Aleman five lengths for the place. The winner was well played, returning $9.50 for $2.

California wheat production has dropped from 40,000,000 bushels in 1890 to an average of 13,000,000 bushels in the last five years, the state university estimates.

UPBAYS AWAIT ST. JOE BATTLE

Start Practice for Return Game With Crack Parochials

Gladstone, Feb. 2 (Special)—One of the largest crowds of fans to witness a basketball contest here this season is expected to gather at the local gymnasium Friday evening when the crack St. Joseph's quintet will journey here for a return game with Gladstone. The second teams, of each school, will clash in the preliminary.

Coach Keil this afternoon sent his squad through a hard workout, the first of a series which will feature a week's intensive training for the coming battle. The Parochials have proved tough competition for almost every squad they have faced this season and the local mentor expect the game to be one of the toughest on the schedule.

In the first meeting of the two teams at Escanaba several weeks ago, the Father Gerald coached aggregation took the Keilmen by surprise, outplaying them consistently for three-quarters of the game during which they led at one time by a score of 10 to 1, only to lose 12 to 11 when Gladstone unleashed a sensational last quarter rally.

The new combination, with Skellenger at center and Potvin, former center at guard, which the local mentor tried out against Stephenson last week with great success, is still being used and it looks as if the change will remain for the remainder of the season.

Emil St. Godard Wins First Lap Of Big Dog Derby

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 2. (AP)—Pushed hard all the way by Mrs. E. P. Ricker of Poland Spring, Me., only woman driver in the race, Emil St. Godard, famed musher from the Pas, Man., captured the first leg of Ottawa's second annual international 100-mile international dog derby today.

St. Godard, winner of the event last year, covered the 33 1-3 miles in two hours, 54 minutes, 14 seconds. Seven minutes and 28 seconds later, Mrs. Ricker drove her team across the finish line. Shorty Russick of Flin Flon, Man., took third place in 3:04:42, and Earl Brydges of Portage, Man., fourth in 3:08:19.

After lagging behind the pace set by Jimmy Johnston of Boston in the first eight miles, St. Godard slipped into the lead at the halfway mark with Russick second and Mrs. Ricker third. Then Mrs. Ricker drove her team, owned jointly by herself and Leonhard Seppala, into second place and thereafter the three leaders maintained their relative positions until the finish line was reached.

Minnesota Wrecks Iowa In Big Ten Contest, 36 to 14

Minneapolis, Feb. 2 (AP)—Minnesota tonight obtained full authority to second place in the Big Ten basketball race by manhandling Iowa, 36 to 14, to win its fourth Western conference game in five starts.

Baskets fell for the Gophers like leaves in a storm as Iowa offered little resisance to the long and short shooting of Coach MacMillan's quintet. Minnesota, meanwhile, allowed the Hawkeyes only two field goals, both scored in the first half.

The Gophers finished the first half as leaders, 18 to 12, but literally ran away from the Hawkeyes in the closing period.

Michigan-Chicago Game Transferred

Chicago, Feb. 2 (AP)—The Universities of Michigan and Chicago agreed today to transfer their 1931 football game, scheduled for Chicago on October 10, to the Michigan stadium at Ann Arbor.

The change was made because the Notre Dame-Northwestern charity game came on the same date, at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Esky Lumbermen To Attend Meeting

Several Escanaba lumbermen are planning to attend the forty-first annual convention of the Wisconsin Retail Lumbermen's association in Milwaukee, Feb. 17 and 18. They are: H. H. Shepeck, W. W. Mayer, Michael Farrell, Gideon Stegath and G. N. Harder.

How retail lumbermen can assist their communities by helping in city planning, and taking an active part in projects affecting civic welfare, is a subject scheduled for informal discussions at the meeting. Experiences of dealers in working with other industries to advance the interests of the localities in which they live, will be exchanged.

Using newspaper advertising to convince the public of the desirability and safety of home ownership, thereby placing cities on a program of solid development, is one of the most important topics to come before the convention. Dealers will confer with nationally known merchandising authorities on planning successful newspaper campaigns and on the use of such advertising to build up confidence in the services which the retail lumberman has to offer.

According to B. F. Springer of the John Schroeder Lumber Co., Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin Retail Lumbermen's Association, more than 2,000 persons will attend the convention from almost every community in the state. Mr. Springer expects that the convention will have a far-reaching effect in improving the lumber business, which is one of the basic industries of Wisconsin.

Police Raid Hotel At Banquet Tonight

Officers of the Escanaba police department, their ladies and guests, will enjoy a banquet at the Delta hotel tonight as a climax to their recent pistol shooting competition. The banquet is to be staged at the expense of the losing team, and has been arranged by Chief of Police John J. Tolan.

The shoot resulted in improving the marksmanship of local policemen by 100 per cent, and officers are continuing their practice shooting on their indoor range on Stephenson avenue.

The United States immigration border patrol was started on July 1, 1924.

Detroit Loses Prestige as Smuggling Center of U. S.

Note—This is the first of a series of four stories dealing with liquor smuggling at Detroit.

Detroit, (AP)—Fifteen men with itching palms—yo ho, and a boatload of beer.

This, says Col. Heinrich A. Pickert, collector of customs in effect, will be the theme song of any large scale liquor smuggling that may be done in the future on Detroit river.

And the anistrophe, adds the colonel, who has a record as a fighter in military and civil service, will be in a grim bass, along the lines heard in federal court the other day when a dozen or so former officers of the custom service were sentenced to prison.

In short, barring some unexpected turn in international affairs, finis has been written to another episode of adventure, bloodshed and illegal gain—an episode which, though confined to a comparatively small area, might well have a place alongside the stories of swashbuckling on the Spanish Main and smuggling on the Irish coast. What a couple of years ago was a $40,000,000 a year business engaging the attention, Col. Pickert estimates, of 10,000 men has become a more or less petty enterprise because of a "friendly gesture" of the Dominion of Canada and what the Wickersham commission's report lauded as effective cooperation of enforcement agencies here. Smuggling from Canada, the commission found, has by no means been ended, but it has moved away from Detroit, which 18 months ago was the "wettest spot" on the border.

Just "Snipers" Now

It was some eight months ago that the Canadian government lent a helping hand by forbidding export of liquor to prohibition countries, and now Colonel Pickert asserts that his sector is the "driest" on the rum war front. In fact, he says, the war here has been reduced to mere sniping.

But the present state of affairs was not reached without as much grief as ever was packed into a few square miles of territory. Lives were lost, reputations were blasted, international incidents stirred diplomats, families were broken up and scores of men went behind bars in the old days when nearly $2,000,000 worth of liquor —Canadian declaration value— started across the river monthly —and most of it reached its destination. Canadian export records, for instance, show that during the fiscal year 1928 some 3,800,000 gallons started from government export docks. Only about 150,000 gallons were seized that year by United States customs officers.

In those days, the customs patrol was engaged in an uphill fight—a force of 150 men or less against thousands of smugglers. The customs men worked for comparatively small salaries, and the smugglers for millions. Sometimes, it is true, as many as 10,000 cases of beer and 1,500 of spirits would be seized in a month but to the smugglers it was just and item in the profit and loss account.

Three major exposures of official corruption came in the last three years, and there were dribbles of discovered dishonesty from time to time in addition. Summer C. Sleeper, former head of the customs border patrol, asserted that in 1928 his force of 130 had more than a 100 per cent turnover; 175 men left the service. Two years ago an investigation by Elmer W. Lewis, head of the customs service's special agents, involved 26 inspectors, and late last year some 20 more were indicated. Along with each group was a batch of bribe-givers mostly down river smugglers. Some of the men in the last group admitted in pleading guilty to indictments that they accepted money to let in beer after the Canadian export ban went into effect. The exposure led Colonel Pickert to remark that the only way to smuggle liquor into this port now is for the smuggler to find and bribe a weak, corrupt officer. Such officers, he asserted, will be detected sooner or later in every case.

Lunch, Liquor Bribes

The third major scandal involved, not customs officers, but city policemen and centered around Belle Isle, famous Detroit municipal park. No prosecutions resulted from this expose, however.

Federal officers will admit frankly that in the boom days of smuggling bribery was attempted and practiced in its crudest form. Stories were told of smugglers speeding up to patrol boats to toss in big rolls of bills. One yarn has it that a bank guard, uniformed somewhat like a customs officer, walked home each evening along the river front. Men came up to him and silently passed him money, which he pocketed without a word. This went on, the story goes, until one of the riverfront hangers on happened into the bank one day and learned the truth. That night, it is said, the smugglers took it out of the bank guard's hide.

After the first exposure, with its indication that retribution is almost certain, the smugglers used more finesse. "They worked carefully," said Colonel Pickert. "One would be sent to talk to a border patrolman on duty. He would give the officer a cigarette at a time when, standing out in the cold, he really needed it. Then, possibly a sandwich, a cup of coffee and after that a drink of liquor, and the officer soon was the rum runner's victim. Many an officer, of course, resented with words and sometimes with physical violence the first attempt to bribe him. No instance has been found where one rebuff was not enough. After that, they let him alone."

The customs service does its own housecleaning and rids itself of men who give aid and comfort to the enemy, Colonel Pickert declared. He is not worried about the future of the patrol service. He is grieved, he says, when any of his men go wrong, but he believes the past demonstrates that duplicity is discovered and punished.

$4,700 Cash Swells Menominee Estate

An additional $4,700 in cash was added to the estate of Mrs. A. B. Stryker, of Menominee, when a safety deposit box was opened last Saturday. Mrs. Stryker's death occured last December, following a few months after that of her husband, who was a poneer Menominee tobacco dealer.

The box contained gold, silver and currency. A wrapped roll of five-cent pieces were all dated 1883. Gold pieces bore dates in the eighties and nineties. The stamp on a packet of $500 in currency was dated 1900. Rubber bands on some of the rolls had rotted with age. Bankers pointed out that had the money been accumulated in a savings account the interest would have more than doubled the amount. The estate before the opening of the box was $17,000, to be divided between nephews and nieces. Lloyd and George Neville of Manistique are among the heirs.

January Easy On Coal, Snow Shovel

January brought only 13.3 inches of snow, according to records of the weather bureau at Escanaba, and approximately five inches remain on the gound at the present time. Measurements taken Monday showed 11 inches of ice on the bay.

The opening month of 1931 had only two days with "zero" weather, the 15th and the 21st. The low mark for the latter date was 2.6 below zero, while on the 15th the mercury lingered down to within two-tenths of the zero mark. The day after that, the 16th, had the highest temperature mark of the month, 36 above zero. Normal for the month is 15.4. This year the mean tempeature for January was 22.4, just seven degrees better than normal.
